COUNTY REPLACES 16, SAVES $10,000 AT REFORMATORY

Drastic Shakeup at Hapeville Institution Seen as Beginning of Wide Economy Move in Fulton.

JURY MAY SCAN 'SERIOUS CHARGES'

'Immorality, Brutality' Given as Reason for Action by Commission.

Fulton county commissioners yesterday lopped $10,000 per year from the salary account at the White Industrial Farm, Hapeville, as the first move of what was considered the advent of a long-heralded economy move.

Following the resignation of John Q. Nash, 70, veteran superintendent, the commission unanimously decided to replace the entire personnel of 16 employees, following an investigation of charges of "immorality, mismanagement, misdirection, brutality and general confusion over the conduct of the institution," in which 65 white boys are housed.

Although commission members seized on the charges and counter charges which have smoldered there for the past several months as the reason for the drastic shake-up, it was said that the action presages a general survey of all county departments by commission members with a view of cutting down personnel and effecting "large savings in county administration expense."

It was learned that about 15 impromptu meetings of the commission have been held since February 8 to discuss various policies and that the industrial farm matter has been under commission study for the past several days.

Cut Expenses to Bone.

Other similar sessions are slated to be held at intervals, it was reported, and every "department of the county will be under scrutiny in a movement to cut expenses to the bone and cull from the pay rolls any employee whose services are not actually needed in the conduct of the county's business."

Colonel Nash resigned as superintendent of the farm Tuesday afternoon, Commissioner Gloer Hailey, chairman of the alms and juveniles committee, said yesterday. Although neither Nash nor Hailey made any statement, it was learned that some of the charges against certain employees may find their way into the grand jury room because of their seriousness.

It also was reported that when Nash relinquished his post, he recommended a general "clean-up" of the entire employee personnel of the farm, and that Hailey and other commission members followed his advice.

Nash, who formerly was commandant at G. M. A. Rinehart and other military schools, has a splendid record as a boys' school administrator, Hailey said yesterday, and is in no way involved in any charges of misconduct.

Take a Peek, Doctor! New 'Telescope' Demonstrated

Medical science peeks into the abdomen! Dr. John C. Ruddock, of Los Angeles, famed as the developer in this country of the peritoneoscope, a small telescope with an electric light on the end, yesterday demonstrated the instrument at Grady hospital as a climax to the tenth annual Southeastern Surgical Congress. Dr. Ruddock (left) hand raised, is describing his findings as a visiting medical man peers into the instrument.

MAIJA CRUSHES MADRID REVOLT

Reds Are Driven Back in Withering Crossfire From Machine Guns.

MADRID, March 8.—(P)—Spanish Republicans drove back their Communist foes in the "war within a war" today after bitter street fighting in the heart of tragic, besieged Madrid.

The Republican defense council said the back of the revolt had been broken, but some fighting continued, apparently in sporadic outbursts in the city's outskirts.

Men who had been comrades-in-arms against Nationalist Generalissimo Franco for nearly three years, fought for mastery in otherwise deserted streets as the Communists tried to storm their way into control of the principal buildings.

General Jose Miaja, president of the council that overthrew Juan Negrin's cabinet in Sunday's coup, brought tanks, field guns and machine guns into a withering crossfire to defend his "peace" regime.

General Miaja's associates said the "flight of every Communist leader who could get away" before their comrades launched the uprising at dawn yesterday did much to quench the Communist enthusiasm for fight.

"Except for two or three Communist officers still at large with groups of men, the Communist army and officers either surrendered or were captured," they declared.

All was quiet in the city by nightfall.

In Burgos, Generalissimo Franco, determined to crush all possible sources of war supplies for Republican Spain and quickly bring the 21-month war to an end, ordered a blockade of all coastal territory held by the Madrid government.

He instructed his warships to torpedo any boat, regardless of nationality, which attempted to reach a Republican port.

Surgical 'Telescope' Yields Body Secrets

By LEE FUHRMAN.

A demonstration of the technique of peritoneoscopy—peering into the "innards" with a telescope—was given on a patient at Grady hospital early last night by Dr. John C. Ruddock, of Los Angeles, famed throughout the nation as the developer of the instrument in this country.

The event climaxed the tenth annual assembly of the Southeastern Surgical Congress, which opened Monday, and was witnessed by many of the physicians and surgeons who gathered in Atlanta for the three-day "refresher" course in surgery.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Ruddock had read a paper on the subject, in which he said:

"Any procedure that allows one to see, clearly and sharply, through a mere puncture of the abdominal wall, the organs in the peritoneal cavity—without an exploratory laparotomy and without discomfort to the patient—is ideal."

Following the diagnosis last night through use of the peritoneoscope, the patient, a 46-year-old man, underwent a gall bladder operation.

Before an audience of delegates, crowded in the operating room on the fourth floor of the hospital, Dr. Ruddock gave the demonstration with the patient under local anesthesia, pointing out that the entire exploration was less painful than removal of the tonsils.

"Button Hole" Incision.

Describing the method, Dr. Ruddock explained that a quarter-inch incision, which he termed a "button hole," is made in the abdomen. The abdominal wall is then distended with air, and the peritoneoscope is inserted.

"This instrument contains an electric light on the end, and enables the physician to look at the organs, just as they are."

Dr. Ruddock pointed out that through use of this instrument, patients can be examined without pain and with only one day in a hospital, compared to the two-week hospitalization required in exploratory laparotomy, in which Senator Says Aildredge Should Disqualify Himself on Rate Fight.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—The hot issue of southern freight rates was raised today before a senate committee considering President Roosevelt's nomination of J. Haden Aildredge, of Alabama, to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Senator Reed, Republican, Kansas, questioned Aildredge sharply and declared that if confirmed, Aildredge should disqualify himself from deciding the pending so-called southern governors' rate case, in which southerners are attempting to remedy what they call freight rate "discriminations" against the south. The senator said the nominee had already "formed an opinion on every issue" in the case.

Aildredge declared that he "might disagree" with Reed as to whether he should take part in the decision. Pressed for a "categorical answer" as to whether he would or not, Aildredge said: "I don't know whether I would or not. You are asking me unexpectedly to commit myself on something that ought to have some consideration."

Senator Hill, Democrat, Alabama, came to Aildredge's defense, suggesting that he should be given time to study the case before deciding whether he ought to disqualify himself as a commission member.

AFL NEGOTIATORS AGREE TO STUDY CIO PEACE PLAN

Decision Is Regarded by Some as Shift of Strategy; Next Conference Set for N. Y. on Friday.

TOBIN IS PRESENT AT SECOND SESSION

Preliminary Canvass of Problems Is Made at Meeting in Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—American Federation of Labor negotiators agreed today to consider a CIO proposal that the major labor organizations unite in a single labor movement.

The decision was reached at the first meeting of representatives of the AFL and the CIO appointed to negotiate a settlement of differences between the two labor unions. Coming as it did after the AFL negotiators had rejected the CIO plan yesterday, the decision was regarded by some persons as a shift of strategy.

At the same session, the negotiators decided to hold their next meeting in New York Friday night.

Lewis Statement.

The agreement to consider the CIO proposal, advanced yesterday by CIO Chairman John L. Lewis, was reached after Lewis had made a brief opening statement for motion picture sound cameras. He asked the AFL conferees sitting across the table to give "intelligent analysis" to his proposal instead of attacking the CIO's motives.

The AFL conferees charged in a statement last night that the CIO had embarrassed President Roosevelt by using the White House as a sounding board to disclose its plan for uniting labor.

Labor men said that the federation's agreement to consider the Lewis plan was no indication that the AFL had changed its view that it offered no solution for labor's internal difficulties.

The decision to shift the negotiations to New York was reached after Lewis explained he had previously arranged to attend preliminary meetings there of the United Mine Workers Union which he heads. The UMW policy committee meets in New York tomorrow to discuss proposals it will advance in wage scale negotiations with the soft coal industry beginning March 14.

The federation committee was

PRESIDENT SCANS NEW TAX REFORMS WITH MORGENTHAU

Holds Conference as Hopkins Pledges Administration to Positive Steps Toward Recovery.

BELL IS REPLACED IN BUDGET BUREAU

New Appointee Has Been Serving Michigan in a Similar Capacity.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—Secretary Hopkins pledged the administration to positive business recovery steps today while President Roosevelt talked tax reform with treasury officials and appointed a new budget director.

Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal business mediator, gave for the first time official reasons for the administration's gestures to business. He said steps to promote recovery were especially important now because the recession interrupted a rising trend of national income and because the troubled international situation necessitated internal American unity.

Tax Reform.

He confirmed reports that tax reform would be a major part of the recovery program. Simultaneously the types of legislation which may carry out this part of the plan were aired at a White House conference of the President, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Undersecretary John W. Hanes. Hopkins said that he and Hanes, a former Wall Street broker, see eye to eye on tax reform.

The budget appointment also carried possibly important implications for businessmen who have demanded a balanced budget. Harold D. Smith, who was named to the post, has been serving as Michigan budget director. As such he advised appropriations cuts which brought the budget to within $3,000,000 of a balance, but then welfare, pay roll and other expenditures rose, with the result that the general fund went deeply into the red.

In the federal post, Smith replaces Daniel W. Bell, who has been acting director and an assistant to the secretary of the treasury since 1934, and who, under White House orders, drafted budgets with a deficit of $4,000,000,000 for this fiscal year and $3,400,000,000 for next.

RESENTS REMARK ON 'FINE WEATHER,' KILLS EMPLOYER

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 8.—(P)—A cheery remark—"this certainly is a fine rain" led today to the fatal beating of Grover Russi, 54, a rancher.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Wearn said Russi was beaten with an oak club by Lloyd Wesley Smith, 62, caretaker and gardener at the ranch.

The deputy said Smith objected to Russi's statement about the weather, and said he could "see nothing fine about it." A mild argument developed into one of intensity, Wearn reported, until the gardener seized a club and attacked his employer. Another member of the family finally overpowered Smith.

District Attorney Otis D. Babcock, after interviewing Smith, ordered him held on a murder charge.

Screwball Bolted Behind

Bars for Stealing Nuts!

MILWAUKEE, March 8.—(P)—For weeks police received complaints from theaters and such that seats were collapsing under padded and indignant customers. Plainclothesmen were planted for a week, but still the seats collapsed.

Then, in the Princess theater there was a squeak as a trusty bolt was turned. The law rushed in and got its man. In his residence they found a bushel of nuts, bolts, screws and washers. He had a mania for them, the man said. Puzzled police bolted him behind the bars.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., March 8.—(P)—Patrolman August Cicado figured today there oughta be a law—

Answering a police radio call yesterday he sped to the address given and rapped at the door. The door opened and Patrolman Cicado found in his hand the working end of a leash with a dog at the other end.

"Would you please give my dog an airing?" said the lady, explaining that she was ill.

Yes, the dog got aired.

MAJOR STATE FUND ACTION IS DOOMED

Only One Other Important Levy Measure Is Available—That Increasing Gas Impost a Cent.

EXTRA SESSION TALK SQUELCHED

Harris Says He Does Not Think There Will Be a Special Assembly Call.

By L. A. FARRELL.

The house of representatives last night defeated all four major tax bills before it, apparently dooming major tax legislation for this session, due to end a week from Saturday night.

In rapid-fire order the house killed 20 per cent luxury tax, a 3 per cent sales tax with a referendum attached, a 4 per cent "luxury-sales tax" and the straight 3 per cent sales levy.

Speaker Roy V. Harris declared that there is only one other important tax bill available, a measure to increase the tax on gasoline from six to seven cents per gallon.

"I intend to ask the ways and means committee to act on this bill tomorrow and bring it up for action, too," Speaker Harris said.

Asked if he thought defeat of the tax program increased the possibility of an extra session, Speaker Harris said:

"I do not think there will be an extra session."

He declined to elaborate.

The house voted, 91 to 86, to reject the Lanham luxury sales tax bill, the measure upon which the administration pinned its last hope for a major bill this session. The vote was taken on an effort to substitute the Lanham bill for the straight 3 per cent sales levy.

Representative Wilmer D. Lanier, of Richmond county, an avowed luxury tax advocate who had supported the Lanham bill after the Allison-Williams luxury tax had been defeated, sought to gain reconsideration

At today's hearing Reed contended these writings contained many implications that the south had been discriminated against. Asserting that he had noted discriminations in other sections, the nominee told the committee that all rate discriminations were not necessarily unjust.

He denied that he had instigated the southern governors' case, but in response to a question added that if his writings "inspired it, that is something beyond my control."

Reed contended that the nominee's various writings and public activity had "resulted directly or indirectly in the bringing of the case."

NEW PENAL BOARD VOTED BY SENATEThree-Member Body Would Replace Present Five-Man
Group Under Legislation

The state senate yesterday voted 28 to 9 to abolish the present state board of penal administration and replace it with a new three-member correction commission. There are five members on the present board.

The bill also abolishes the office of penal director, held by A. W. Anderson, but the new bill sets up an executive secretary for the new commission. Leaders in support of the plan said they felt "Anderson appears to be the best choice for executive secretary."

Approval of the measure came after sharp debate during which the senate voted down, 31 to 12, a measure by Senator Walter Sanders, of Newnan, providing for abolition of the present board and transferring its duties to the pardon and parole commission.

Anderson Praised.

The senate acted after it had received a report from a special five-member committee which investigated the state board of penal administration. This committee recommended abolition of the board as well as Anderson's office, although it accompanied the recommendation with a tribute to Anderson's work as executive director.

Senator Don B. Howe, of Tallapoosa, chairman of the special committee, and Senator M. E. Groover, of LaGrange, led the successful fight for the bill. Senator Groover, chairman of the penitentiary committee, assigned his speaking time to Senator Adie W. Durden, of Albany, the senate floor leader, who made the concluding speech in support of the bill.

Arguing in support of his measure, Senator Sanders declared that the penal board had failed to achieve the aims laid down for it in the bill creating the board.

No Segregation.

"As far as we can learn there has been no effort made to segregate prisoners and they have failed to build up the system," Senator Sanders charged. "Why, they even have a 12-year-old boy down in Tattall prison serving time right along with hardened life term criminals."

Senator Durden pointed out that the penal system of the state has won wide praise under the new setup.

"When we inaugurated the new system two years ago we knew we would have to make changes after the plan was instituted," Senator Durden said. "Now with the reduction of this board to three members we think it can function properly."

Senator G. Everett Millican and Senator Paul Lindsay, both of whom served on the Howe committee, urged adoption of the bill.

The Howe committee declared that it found that the present board is too cumbersome and the executive director had "received too many orders."

The committee scored reappointment of Warden A. J. Walton to the Milledgeville prison, and praised the selection of Mark Sims, new warden at Tattall.

Chairman A. O. Blalock was criticized for using a negro prisoner for a chauffeur, the committee asserting that the negro had been driving the board chairman's car without a driver's license in violation of the state law.

Later the senate approved a bill to make the offices of the members of the pardon and parole commission elective. The bill was amended by Senator Millican to place the responsibility of fixing when the commissioners should run for office on the Governor. As drawn, the measure would have put Commissioner Clem Rainey up next year, Commissioner George Johns up in 1942 and Commissioner V. L. Stanley up in 1944. The bill now goes to the house.

YOUTH CONVICTED IN BURNING OF GIRL

Three-Year Sentence Meted to First Defendant.

LUDOWICI, Ga., March 8.—(AP) Sambo Barrow, 19, was convicted in superior court here today of assault with intent to murder in connection with the stomp burning of Adia Cowart.

The jury was quickly chosen, and after hearing evidence presented by the victim and others found Barrow guilty. He was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary by Judge J. T. Grice, of the Atlantic judicial circuit.

Barrow who forfeited his bond yesterday was captured at 2 o'clock this morning near Reidsville and returned for trial.

Bertie Cowart, sister of the burned girl, and E. G. Turner were indicted on the same charge as Barrow. They will be tried at another term of court, as court was adjourned today.

Operation To Quell Fear Is Described

Surgical Procedure Is Factor in Correcting the Mental Upsets Which Fill Hospitals of Nation

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH, Associated Press Science Writer.

A new variety of operation for correcting the "disease of civilization" or extreme mental upsets which cause many suicides and fill many hospitals, was described yesterday by Dr. J. G. Lyster, of Jacksonville, Fla.

The problem of mental disease is one of the most important facing the medical profession today, he told the closing session of the Southeastern Surgical Congress, since more than half the hospital beds in the United States are occupied by mental patients.

Medical science has developed such methods as fever therapy, psychiatric treatment, insulin shock, and other treatments with varying results and within the past two years a surgical operation on the pre-frontal lobes of the brain, which lie just back of the forehead, has been developed. In it small cores of brain tissue are cut from neighboring tissues with a wire loop. It has proven successful in many cases.

Direct Procedure. The new procedure, however, is a direct one in which the surgeon is able to see exactly what he is doing at all times. With the wire loop technique the operation was performed more or less blindly without the surgeon knowing what tissues he cut or whether he cut a blood vessel in the brain with subsequent hemorrhage and sometimes death.

Dr. Lyster explained that he makes two holes in the skull just above and in front of the ears just as a boy would plug a watermelon. Then by cutting through the brain covering he reaches the nerve fibers of the brain running from the pre-frontal lobes which direct the activity of the rest of the brain by electrical nerve impulses. Many and sometimes most of these fibers are cut, thus interrupting the electrical circuits. Then the brain covering is sewed together, the bone plugs are replaced in the skull and the scalp stitched over.

The pre-frontal lobes are absent in most of the lower animals, the Florida surgeon explained, and thus the excitement, intense emotions, despondency, depression, fear reactions, apprehension and suicidal tendencies of civilized man are apparently due to his development of the forebrain. When this runs out of control mild or severe forms of insanity result.

No Fatalities. The interruption by operation of impulses from the pre-frontal lobes has resulted in 26 cases in quieting extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, suicidal intentions, worry, agitation and hallucinations. No fatalities have occurred from the operations. In some cases exhilaration resulted.

Describing one case, he declared that after the operation the patient "was no longer agitated and restless, but relaxed and quiet. A smile was observed instead of the melancholic face and the picture of despair. The outlook on life was seen to be changed immediately."

ROOSEVELT CONSULTED ON PLANS FOR KING

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(UP)—President Roosevelt conferred tonight with State Department officials and representatives of the British government and King George VI on plans for the visit of the King and Queen to the United States in June.

Detailed arrangements for the royal family's stay in Washington and with President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the summer White House at Hyde Park, N. Y., were worked out, but the schedule will not be announced until it is approved by the King himself.

the abdomen is opened surgically for a look at the insides.

"The method is extremely valuable in cases of elderly persons, the markedly emaciated and the anemic, cases that may be considered poor risks," he said.

No Danger. He added there is no danger to the patient, and that examinations of this kind were invaluable in making a decision whether or not to operate.

"It enables the physician to see things as they are," he said. Recounting the history of peritoneoscopy, Dr. Ruddock said the method was first used on a dog, about 37 years ago, by a German physician, Kelling.

"Kelling used an old-fashioned cystoscope but his principal was the same as that used today," Dr. Ruddock continued.

"Kelling never printed a paper, or did much about the method, until about 10 years later, when Jacobus, in Stockholm, wrote an article and brought out the procedure. Kelling then came forth and told of his work, but Jacobus is generally credited with the original idea.

"Following the war, when Germany was in bad economic condition and there wasn't much money around, Kelling did further work with his procedure. It was less costly than the exploratory laparotomy, you see.

"Then the procedure rather went to sleep for a good many years, and little was heard of it."

Work in America. Dr. Ruddock said he first began work with the peritoneoscope about seven years ago, designed his instruments in the early days. Most of the advancements made in this country in the field are results of his work.

"In 900 cases, the general diagnostic average with the instrument was 86.5 per cent correct, compared with 74.8 per cent through laparotomy," he said.

The work is being done in a limited way all over the world, Dr. Ruddock said, and a wall of traditional conservatism had to be overcome during his early work with the instrument.

It is possible, Dr. Ruddock also said, to use the instrument through a stab wound, for purposes of learning if the stabbed person's spleen or liver were punctured. The instrument can be used also to cut adhesions and to drain cysts.

Orthopaedic Work. Another speaker on yesterday's program was Dr. Frank D. Dickson, orthopaedic surgeon of Kansas City, who said that surgery is now able to correct "even the most hopeless deformities" caused by arthritis.

"Our threefold objective is to relieve pain, correct deformity and to restore the normal functions of the affected limbs," he said.

Others on the program yesterday were Dr. Mims Gage, of New Orleans; Dr. William Jaso-Mixter, of Boston, Mass.; Dr. Fred W. Rankin, of Lexington, Ky.; Dr. J. G. Lyster, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Dr. Willard R. Cooke, of Galveston, Texas; Dr. Lloyd Noland, of Fairfield, Ala.; Dr. G. A. Hendon, of Louisville, Ky.; Dr. Deryl Hart, of Durham, N. C., and Dr. W. R. Buffington, of New Orleans.

Dr. B. T. Beasley, secretary-treasurer of the congress, said registration figures showed approximately 1,000 physicians and surgeons attending the meetings, which began Monday.

The congress will be held next March in Birmingham.

6 MILLION SLASHED FROM INTERIOR FUND

Public Works Construction Cut; Total Still Higher Than in 1938.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP) The house appropriations committee continued today its campaign for reduced government expenditures by slashing more than $6,000,000 from a budget bureau request for $166,833,000 to operate the Interior Department next year.

The committee cut deeply into the budget bureau's recommendations for public works construction.

It trimmed $1,000,000 from a proposed $14,000,000 fund for Bonneville dam, another $1,000,000 from a $10,000,000 request for the Blue Ridge and Natchez parkways, and eliminated altogether a proposal to spend $2,500,000 for air-conditioning five government buildings.

The bill's total, however, was almost $15,000,000 more than congress appropriated for the department last year.

The committee also cut $600,000 from the $2,900,000 appropriation for the National Bituminous Coal Commission.

The bill and testimony on its provisions disclosed that:

1. The Navajo Indians of the southwest are multiplying so fast that their 25,000 square mile reservation soon will be inadequate to support them.
2. The Bureau of Mines has discovered a way to produce magnesium for airplane construction in a much purer form.
3. The nation's expected shortage of petroleum in the next two decades may force considerable use of oil extracted from coal.

Treatment of Intestinal Paralysis By Small 'Balloon' Told Doctors

Fairly Common Condition, Caused by Complete Damming Up of Digestive Processes, Can Be Aided by Rubber Siphon Tube, Trio Tells Surgeons.

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH, Associated Press Science Writer.

A method of treating paralysis of the intestines, a fairly common condition, by having a person swallow a small rubber balloon attached to a rubber siphon tube was described yesterday before the Southeastern Surgical Congress.

Dr. Grover C. Penberthy, Dr. Charles G. Johnston and Dr. R. J. Noer, of Detroit, Mich., declared that the disease is an almost complete damming up of the digestive processes, causing accumulations of gas and food and painful distention of the abdomen.

It may result from injury during operations, inflammation of the lining of the abdomen, or fractures of the spine or pelvis. Previously the principal treatment was an operation directly into the intestines to relieve the accumulated pressure. This has been unsatisfactory, however, Dr. Penberthy declared, because it relieved only a small part of the digestive apparatus.

Instead, the Detroit physicians use of a 10-foot tube which is passed through the stomach and pylorus and into the intestines. Then the rubber ball on the end is inflated and peristalsis, the weave-like motions of the intestinal walls which pass food along, pulls the tube along automatically.

As it progresses, they declared, it drains the intestines completely with quick relief for the patient and can be used repeatedly when necessary to eliminate distention without the use of the surgeon's knife.

The tube has also been used successfully in the quick location of obstructions in the intestines which often threaten the lives of patients, Dr. Penberthy pointed out. The tube is passed into the intestines until it stops. Then barium, which casts a shadow on an X-ray plate is injected through the tube and an X-ray picture is made to determine the exact location of the obstruction and make possible a quick and accurate operation.

"We feel that this method goes far toward solving the problems of abdominal distention and intestinal obstruction, Dr. Penberthy added.

Family troubles and threats of war in Europe have a strong influence in causing many actual physical diseases by their effect on the mind, Dr. W. O. Johnson, of Louisville, Ky., told the surgeons.

"Psychic and emotional influences are causes of high blood pressure, goiter, colitis, exhaustion, pelvic congestion and constipation" as expressions of "exaggerated human functions," he declared.

These troubles are human diseases and have not been reproduced in animals, he said, and do not occur before a child has developed its emotional powers. "Their occurrence bears a strong relationship to world crises and great emotional states."

A much greater percentage of a patient's complaints are psychological in origin than the diagnoses told.

GEORGE W. DUNBAR
DIES IN 74TH YEAR*Rites Today for Veteran Railroad Man.

George W. Dunbar, 73, of Logansville, a veteran railroad man, died yesterday morning. Mr. Dunbar was born in Atlanta and began his railroad career as a wiper in the old Seaboard Air Line Railroad shops in this city in 1880. He was later promoted to fireman and in 1885 became an engineer on the Florida East Coast run. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers presented him an honorary badge in 1929, denoting 40 years of continuous membership, and he was mentioned in the Locomotive Journal, trade publication, as one of the most valuable members of the organization. Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Miss Mary Dunbar and Mrs. W. S. Bailey; three brothers, J. H. Dunbar, of Atlanta; D. E. Dunbar, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; and O. E. Dunbar, of Greenville, S. C., and several nieces and nephews. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill with the Rev. D. J. Fant officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

MOTHER OF 7 IS SHOT
BY 5-YEAR-OLD SON

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ALBANY, Ga., March 8.—Mrs. J. M. Holt, wife of a Lee county tenant farmer and mother of seven children, is in a serious condition in an Albany hospital, the victim of the accidental discharge of a .22 rifle in the hands of her five-year-old son. She was shot in the abdomen. The accident occurred late Monday at the Holt home 10 miles northeast of Leesburg.

Maxwell Takes Charge in Reformatory Shakeup

W. H. Maxwell, of Roswell, formerly connected with several outstanding Georgia A. & M. schools, before their abolition several years ago, is shown, left above, as he assumed charge of the Fulton county white industrial farm, Hapeville, yesterday, following the resignation of Colonel John Q. Nash, who held the post for the past 11 years. Every employee of the institution was replaced by an order of the county commission.

S. T. BLEDSOE, RAIL
PIONEER, IS DEAD

Exponent of Streamlined Service, President of Santa Fe, Succumbs at 70.

CHICAGO, March 8. — (AP) — Samuel T. Bledsoe, president of the Santa Fe System Lines and one of the nation's foremost exponents of streamlined train service, died today. Funeral services will be held here Friday.

Bledsoe, 70, had been suffering from arthritis of the spine since January but the immediate cause of his death early today was an internal hemorrhage.

His 44-year career spanned the period between the building of the vast rail networks on the western prairies and the operation of the swift and sleek speedsters of the modern era.

Bledsoe, a quiet, genial executive, was elected chairman of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad's executive committee in 1931 and took over the double duty of chairman and president on May 2, 1933.

Separated 53 Years, Brothers Reunited

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. LAYONIA, Ga., March 8.—

Three Georgia-born brothers met here today after 53 years' separation to talk over their childhood experiences at their birthplace in rugged Rabun county, near Clayton.

Back in 1886, adventurous Tom Smith, then still short of his majority, left Georgia for the wild western plains of what is now Oklahoma, taking with him his 14-year-old brother, Albert.

Today, for the first time, they returned east for a reunion with their brother, Ben, who is Layonia's night police chief.

BACHMAN HEADS FREIGHT BUREAU

E. L. Hart Renamed Secretary and Traffic Manager.

J. R. Bachman, former Atlanta councilman and for many years a business leader, yesterday was elected 1938 president of the Atlanta Freight Bureau at a meeting of the bureau's new board of directors.

E. L. Hart, recognized as an outstanding authority on freight rates, was renamed secretary and traffic manager.

Jack Pappenheimer, secretary and treasurer of the Southern Spring Bed Company, was chosen first vice president; W. E. DuPre, president of the DuPre Manufacturing Company, second vice president, and I. A. Hirschberg, coal brokerage firm executive, was re-elected treasurer. Judge Edgar B. Watkins was reappointed general counsel.

Mr. Bachman, executive of the Atlanta Milling Company, began business in Atlanta 40 years ago and served as a member of the Freight Bureau's board of directors for 35 years.

Mr. Hart joined the Freight Bureau in 1921 and has served in his present capacity since 1932.

The bureau was a motivating force in the drive for north-south parity.

Mr. J. Doran, treasurer of Davidson-Paxon's and retiring president of the bureau, remains a director. Other members of the board are Charles Manley Brown, Herbert E. Choate, D. E. Clark, Robert A. Clark, H. S. Collinsworth, John M. Cooper, W. E. DuPre, T. L. Earnest, E. A. Gilliam, Sig Guthman, A. L. Harris Jr., I. A. Hirschberg, Bolling H. Jones Jr., F. A. Jordan, H. L. Litchfield, Jack Pappenheimer, W. A. Parker Jr., J. A. Ragsdale, Myer Regenstein, Ralph Rosenbaum, W. B. Williamson Jr., C. B. Wilson and Mr. Bachman.

POST ROADS FUND
BILL BECOMES LAW

Auto Tag Sales Proceeds Allocated to Division.

Among bills signed by Governor Rivers today was one by Representative Gross, of Stephens, to allocate all revenue from automobile license tag sales to the post roads division of the State Highway Department.

Gross estimated this would give the post roads division about $1,500,000 annually which would add to federal funds to make available about $2,000,000 for "off the system" roads. He said at present the general highway fund receives about $1,300,000 of the tag money with only $200,000 going to post roads.

Another general bill signed was one by Gross making it mandatory for each county to provide offices in the county courthouse for the county superintendent of schools.

ITALIAN WAGE BOOSTS PREPARED BY FASCISTS

ROME, March 8. — (AP) — Fascist authorities, an authoritative spokesman indicated tonight, have promulgated wage increases of 5 to 10 per cent for 7,000,000 workers.

Some foreign observers believed the move was intended not only to meet higher living costs but to lift the morale of the country to a higher point at a time when Italy is developing colonial demands on France.

resignation with regret," Halley added, "and a letter to this effect has been sent him."

Maxwell Takes Post. He was succeeded by W. H. Maxwell, of Roswell, former school teacher and for many years connected prominently with Georgia A. & M. schools. Maxwell recently has been employed by the parks department of the county, but was shifted to the superintendency of the farm.

Those fired by the board order are C. M. Davis, C. W. Garmon, H. M. Dodson, Jean White, L. B. Kelley, H. M. White, Charles F. Dunn, Mrs. C. M. Davis, Buford O. Stevenson, Chester N. Perryman, T. E. Harper, Tom Scoggins Jr., Mrs. Tom Scoggins and J. W. Maddox.

T. S. Scoggins was transferred from the farm to the negro industrial farm and George W. Waits, who had been at the negro institution, succeeded him as probation officer.

Others assigned from various county departments to fill the vacated places are J. E. Thaxton, C. C. Lanier, L. T. Johnson, C. A. King, W. W. Rivers and D. B. Johnson.

All in all, the 16 old employees were replaced by eight, who already were on the county pay rolls. This, it was said yesterday, will mean a yearly saving of about $10,000 in the administration account of the institution.

DIVERSION IS HIT AS ROAD LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS

Dr. R. J. Kennedy, Chairman Pro Tem. of Temporary Organization, Is Named President.

The Citizens' Road League of Georgia adopted resolutions yesterday opposing "any method of state financing" whereby highway funds will be "subjected to legislative appropriation" from the general fund.

A group of good roads advocates, perfecting a permanent body, warned government cannot "survive on indebtedness," opposed "unilaterally" the use of highway money for any purposes "other than the construction, reconstruction, maintenance, policing, retirement of indebtedness and administration" of Georgia roads.

Dr. R. J. Kennedy, of Statesboro, chairman pro tem. of the league which was organized on a temporary basis a few months ago, was elected president. John N. Holder, of Jefferson; Morris Tift, of Albany, and William Turner Jr., of LaGrange, were chosen vice presidents. Porter W. Carswell, of Waynesboro, was elected executive secretary.

Pay-as-You-Go Plan.
T. Coleman Andrews, vice president of the Citizens' Road League of Virginia, urged a pay-as-you-go plan and warned of the results of issuing bonds, declaring "man cannot live" and "government cannot survive on the creation of indebtedness." He termed diversion of highway funds as the "real threat" of the nation's road program.

The delegates also went on record asking the state legislature to appoint a highway planning commission aimed at a long-range road program.
The league issued a pre-meeting statement "vigorously" opposing "diversion of our highway funds. Further diversion will bring about a collapse of our statewide road program," and asserting Georgia highways would become "so run down and out of date that we will fall far behind the other states which are making real highway progress."

Dr. Kennedy urged "further improvement" in Georgia's highway system. In the opening address, he asked that steps be taken "more carefully to safeguard our investment." He declared motor taxes should be in keeping with the ability of the motorist to pay.

Dr. Kennedy urged early completion of traffic surveys conducted by the state and the United States Bureau of Public Roads, asking the "prompt and aggressive use immediately thereafter of the facts developed." He asked immediate attention to the "pressing problem of our primary highways."

Safety Planning.
Andrews, city comptroller of Richmond, Va., called for safety in highway planning and pointed out such a program would be a stimulant to increased education by bringing people closer together and bettering traffic conditions for school busses.

C. B. Allen, publisher of the Moultrie Observer, and B. F. Mann, of Macon, Bibb county road commissioner, were among those endorsing the league's movement. Included on the permanent board of directors were David Atkinson and Mills B. Lane, of Savannah; H. Dixon Smith, Columbus; Leon Dure, Macon; M. E. Dyess, Augusta; Charlie Bishop and Wiley Moore, Atlanta.

MRS. COULBOURNE DIES IN ROANOKE

Member of Prominent Atlanta Family.

Mrs. Mary E. Roach Coulbourne, native of Atlanta and a member of a prominent Atlanta family, died Tuesday at her home in Roanoke, Va., it was learned yesterday.

The former Mary E. Roach, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Roach, Mrs. Coulbourne was the widow of William E. Coulbourne, and had made her home in Roanoke for many years after spending her young womanhood here and taking an active part in the social and cultural affairs.

Two sisters, Mrs. A. G. McMillan and Mrs. M. M. McMillan, of 218 Twelfth street, survive her in addition to five daughters. Burial was in the family lot at Roanoke.

RALPH M'GILL NAMED ON NYA COMMITTEE

Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, has been appointed a member of the Georgia State Advisory Committee of the National Youth Administration, it was announced yesterday.

The committee is composed of approximately 20 prominent Georgians, who will assist the state NYA office in the formulation of local policies.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or acute passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

UNIVERSITY WILL GET OAK BUST OF PEABODY
ATHENS, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—The University of Georgia will be presented an oak bust of the late George Foster Peabody by his daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Peabody Waite, officials of the university announced today.

The bust, carved from a white oak at the Peabody home in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., will be placed in the university's new forestry building.

Peabody founded the School of Forestry and was instrumental in development of other branches of the university.

Formal presentation of the bust will be made in the spring.

I ONLY HAVE TO GROW 1,650,850 HAIRS TO AVOID BALDNESS!

Let Thomas Help You Save Your Hair

IF you live the normal span of life and never become bald you will grow about 15 full heads of hair—1,650,850 hairs. A hair grows to maturity in four years, falls out, and is replaced (if your scalp is healthy) by a new, live hair.

You avoid baldness, therefore, not by trying to stop normal hair-fall, but by seeing to it that your scalp replaces each hair which falls out. New hair fails to grow when (1) the scalp is attacked by some local infection, such as dandruff; or (2) when scalp circulation is sluggish and the dormant hair lacks nourishment. Thomas treatment is designed to overcome the 14 local scalp ills which cause most baldness and to gently stimulate the sources of hair nourishment in the scalp.

For twenty years The Thomas' have been ending scalp worries for others, and can do the same for you. Call today for a free scalp examination, and learn how this reliable, proved method overcomes dandruff, stops abnormal hair loss, and promotes hair growth on thin and bald spots.

Wright Field Is Focus of Air Progress

Dayton Base Is Center of Army Development Activities; Planes of 1942 Are 'In Works' Today.

By PAUL MASON.

DAYTON, Ohio, March 8.—(AP)—Wright field, the army air corps' 746-acre aircraft and materiel testing laboratory, here, may well be considered a keystone in the development of President Roosevelt's $300,000,000 program of military air expansion.

Congressional approval of air rearmament means more fliers to man more planes, more operating bases as a foundation for defensive strategy and faster riveting to create the winged weapons which are the stuff of aerial warfare.

But from experiment and research must stem the knowledge which makes planes speedier, safer, deadlier. Warplanes to appear in 1942 are "in the works" today.

Tests and Retests.
It is here—close by the city that gave birth to the aviation industry—that everything entering into construction of an army plane is tested, and tested again once the ship has been fabricated.

Paint, rivets, fabric, steel, aluminum, fuel and oil, delicate flight instruments—and planes themselves—are studied 24 hours a day. Motors are subjected to searching performance, cylinder by cylinder, then "en bloc." Propellers roar in "sound-proof" concrete blockhouses—yet their noise all but drowns out conversation in administrative offices blocks away.

Here, likewise, the human element—flight personnel—is studied. Recent accent on high altitude or "above-weather" flying has made necessary deeper inquiry into the effect of altitude on the body. A physiological laboratory on the field constantly is originating data on the subject.

Basic Research.
Concerned principally with "functional tests" of proposed new army air equipment, the materiel division, with headquarters on the field, nevertheless develops certain basic research in its quest for new and superior standards of performance.

Here, briefly, are the steps taken by the division in bringing to reality a plane or piece of equipment designed for air corps use:

Specifications are developed and outlined by the engineering section. The plane (or equipment) plant's own pilots or other ex-is built and factory-tested by the peris, then submitted on competitive bids to the procurement branch.

Reports, including those submitted by air corps officer and civilian inspectors are studied. Further tests determine the ships suitability for acceptance. Granted that contracts are awarded and delivery accomplished, the plane's upkeep and repair becomes the province of the field service section.

Repair Depots.
Four repair and maintenance depots are located strategically over the United States: At San Antonio, Texas, Fairfield (near Wright field) Sacramento, Cal., and at Middletown, Pa.

Tests of experimental craft and equipment are conducted by the flying branch, which here numbers six officers and between 60 and 75 civilians.

The power plant branch is charged with motor design; an equipment branch handles accessories including instruments and tires; the armaments section constantly is at work on guns, bombs; the materials branch tests and checks all raw materials, and a shop branch sees to it that engines are in repair and that changes are made, if and when ordered.

In addition, an aircraft radio branch, operated by the signal corps, as an integral part of the engineering section, develops radio apparatus.

Ordinarily, it takes three years, experts said, to develop a plane from the drawing-board to initial delivery—and two years more before it takes its place with troops in the field.

Engineers indeed are perfecting the plane of five years from now and, added one officer, "We have a fair idea of what the plane 10 years distant, will be like."

COLONEL FICKEL MADE BRIGADIER GENERAL

MARCH FIELD, Cal., March 8.

(AP)—Colonel Jacob E. Fickel, ninth corps area aviation officer at the presidio of San Francisco, was named a brigadier general in command of the first wing of the United States army air corps today, subject to senatorial confirmation.

He is scheduled to succeed Brigadier General Delos C. Emmons, recently elevated to major general in command of the general headquarters air force.

Says Television Ready

LARRY GUBB.

TELEVISION SETS ARE READY FOR USE

Larry Gubb, President of Radio Firm, Explains Developments Here.

Television receiving sets are ready for commercial use but it will be many years before there will be enough broadcasting stations to give them wide popularity. Larry Gubb, of Philadelphia, president of the Philco Radio & Television Corporation, declared last night.

Here for a sales meeting, Mr. Gubb said television receivers had been ready for the market for two years but their sale had not been pushed because of limited sending facilities.

"We don't want to try to fool the public," he declared. "There is no use trying to sell a man a receiving set, no matter how perfect, unless there is going to be something he can receive."

"It is more than likely a television broadcasting station will be in operation on New York within the next few months. It is possible that one will be started in Chicago and one on the Pacific coast before the end of the year. But this still won't mean nation-wide television facilities.

"The effective range of a sending station is governed by its height. In New York, broadcasting from the Empire State building, it probably will be possible to transmit over a 40 or 50-mile radius. In other cities the receiving area probably will be limited to about a 25-mile range." Mr. Gubb said that the average cost of a small receiving set probably would be $125.

TWO COLUMBUS MEN HELD IN KNIFE DEATH

PHENIX CITY, Ala., March 8.—(AP)—Sheriff J. S. Burch, of Russell county, announced today he was holding two Columbus (Ga.) men on charges of murder in connection with the fatal cutting of Jack Smith, 20, of Shawmut, Ala., here Sunday.

Sheriff Burch listed the two men, who were arrested by Columbus detectives and turned over to him, as R. C. Holland, 35, and George Rolling, 23.

Smith, a machine gun student in aviation at Barksdale Field, La., died yesterday at Langdale after infection in the wounds had necessitated the amputation of an arm. He was on furlough from Barksdale Field and had been visiting his parents at Shawmut.

Surveying the history of leprosy, Anthony Weymouth calls it a disease of poverty, and points out that it has only taken hold of populations weak in nutrition and hygiene.

Drunk Charges Throw House in Uproar

Angry Members Resent Warning of Harris Who Says He Referred to Only 'One or Two'

Sharp warning from Speaker Roy V. Harris that members of the Georgia house of representatives "ought to let liquor alone on the floor of this house" precipitated an angry uproar yesterday and brought from Harris a modification that his statement applied only to "one or two particular" members.

Harris had taken the floor to discuss a pending tax measure and a number of questions had been fired at him. Prefacing his remarks with the assertion he was glad to yield to honest questions but did not want to be heckled, Harris charged certain groups and elements were seeking to confuse the legislature, create disorder and chaos "in order that they might get some political advantage some time in the future."

"I am going to say this," Harris said, "and I measure my words carefully."

"Members ought to let liquor alone on the floor of this house. I have been patient, but the time is short and if members come on this floor drinking I am going to call names and read the rules and let the house take such action as it sees fit."

"Honest Convictions." "The time has come when we must be sober-minded, sober and vote our honest convictions."

Representative James V. Carmichael, of Cobb county, quickly challenged the speaker, asserting that he felt that Harris, in the heat of his talk, had possibly left an impression that he did not actually mean to reflect on the majority of the house.

Harris then stated that he did not intend to leave the impression that large numbers of the legislators were coming on the floor drunk but that he referred to a condition that existed with only one or two particularly and that "others had been prodding these to create the confusion."

Harris urged consideration of legislative problems in an orderly and dignified manner and asserted there were some elements in the house who "believe they can make political capital by creating confusion."

Carmichael said most of the legislators were sober-minded and had been soberly considering their problems.

"Heat of Excitement." "I am sorry that the speaker, in the heat and excitement of debate, left the impression that half the members here stay drunk all the time," he said. "I don't think the speaker meant to imply that and I don't think the people of Georgia ought to be given any such impression."

"It is not fair to imply that everybody who opposes a sales tax is drunk. The vast majority of this house has neither been drunk or disgraceful."

Harris interposed that he knew of "only a few instances" in which members had been guilty of improper conduct and added "it is not general, but a few individuals have tried to create confusion by encouraging this condition."

Representative Bleas of Brooks, joined Carmichael in calling the speaker's statement unfair.

"I want everybody to know I haven't been drunk," Bleas said. "It is highly unfortunate that the news should go out over the state that the legislature is drunk and raising the dickens on account of liquor in their stomachs."

"Smear" Legislators. Representative Edwards, of Lowndes, denounced what he called an effort to "smear" the legislature. "There is less drinking in the general assembly this session than I have ever seen," he shouted. "It is unfair for anybody to say that this legislature, which is working its head off, is slopping around in liquor."

"I'll agree that pandemonium reigns, but it is because the administration has been throwing tax bills at us so fast we can't figure out where we are."

The senate passed and transmitted to the house yesterday an amendment to the Bibb delegation's act aimed at "child marriages" in Georgia.

The amendment provided the act would not apply to marriages involving girls over 18 years of age. It also would change the method of dividing damages which might be recovered from an ordinary who violated requirements for issuing licenses.

Under the Bibb delegation's act, already signed by the Governor, damages would be divided equally between the suing party and the county educational fund. The amendment would divide them one-third to the suing party and the two-thirds to the school fund.

Neuralgia Relieved in a Hurry

When you have painful neuralgia, or one of those throbbing headaches, you can trust "BC" to give you relief in a hurry. "BC" is composed of several quick-acting, prescription-type ingredients, carefully blended, that are commonly prescribed by many physicians. These ingredients function together to produce a delightfully soothing effect in the shortest time. If you have never used "BC," please try it and see if it doesn't give you relief in a few minutes. Try it also for muscular aches, simple nervousness, discomfort due to simple head colds or functional periodic pains. Get "BC" in 10 and 35c sizes for by the dose at drug stores and make the test for yourself. By comparison, we believe you will prefer it for the relief of pain and discomfort due to functional disorders. (Adv.)

Accuracy of the Associated Press And Member Papers Is Praised

Legislator Lauds Coverage of Assembly Sessions as House Votes To Exempt Newspapers From Payment of Nonessentials Tax Levy.

Representative H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards, of Lowndes, took the floor yesterday to commend the accuracy of the Associated Press and its member papers in Georgia in reporting legislative procedure and won a vote retaining in the proposed non-essentials tax bill a section exempting newspapers from payment of the levy.

Representative J. Scott Davis, of Floyd, sought to have the section stricken, charging the newspapers of the state are "trying to mold public opinion" against taxes "in the interests of certain wealthy interests and corporations who are paying hundreds of thousands of dollars a year to put their advertisements in these dailies."

"If ever the gentleman had been in a place where they have the Associated Press," shouted Edwards, "I don't believe he would say that. Down in Valdosta we have an agent there for the Associated Press. The Associated Press is operated all over this world in a manner in which they only pay a sufficient amount to send the items over the news wires. What I am trying to say is, the Associated Press is a non-profit organization, operated for the purpose of giving all the world the news."

"There is not a finer system in the world than the Associated Press. I don't know much about it, but I do know this, there are no big salaries. The Associated Press is dedicated to service and service alone. I don't think any man in this place could criticize the Associated Press for putting out the news."

"I don't think the gentleman from Floyd should condemn the newspapers because the newspapers have only been quoting the facts of the case. "Anything you read with the Associated Press on it—or for that matter the INS or United Press as well—you know it's the truth because they don't pay men to put out anything else."

"All over Georgia people won't rest until they get their papers. It's just as essential to have good newspapers in the home as to have a meal."

"The newspapers have been telling the truth."

The Davis amendment was defeated on a voice vote.

RETIRED FARMER DIES OF AUTO CRASH HURTS

MACON, Ga., March 8.—(P)—William Henry Willis, 81, retired farmer, died in a hospital today, the fifth victim of a motor accident in Bibb county this year.

He was struck by an automobile Monday night.

Funeral services for J. C. Thrasher, 68, who died Tuesday night at his home, 329 Ashburton avenue, will be conducted at 10:30 o'clock this morning at Trinity chapel in Decatur with the Rev. A. J. Moncrief officiating. Burial will be in Bethareba cemetery, Oconee county, under the direction of A. S. Turner & Sons.

Pallbearers for Mr. Thrasher, long prominent in political circles in the state, will be W. M. Nichols, James H. Thomas, Zach Cravey, former Governor Eugene Talmadge, J. B. Overton and C. H. Talley.

INTERSTATE TRADE BARRIERS.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, in a report made public this week, vigorously condemns state laws restricting the sale of margarine. Such laws, he said, not only create ill-feeling and retaliation between the states, but do not provide any appreciable aid to dairy farmers.

Special reference is made, in the report, to the resentment created throughout the cotton-growing south by the Wisconsin imposition of a 15-cents-per-pound tax on margarine, which is made largely from cottonseed oil. As a result of that resentment there is a growing prejudice in the south against both agricultural and manufactured products from Wisconsin.

Margarine, however, is only one example among many. The practice of raising state barriers against the products of other states is growing and takes many forms. These discriminatory laws and regulations may be in inspection fees, licenses, peculiar grading requirements, packaging laws, quarantines and other impositions, as well as punitive taxes.

The entire structure, as Secretary Wallace points out, is impeding business recovery and causing "incalculable economic loss" to the nation.

"The existence of trade barriers between the states," the Wallace report continues, "provided a powerful incentive for calling the constitutional convention in 1787. The resulting constitution, it was thought, insured free trade between the states. Today we cannot say that we have free trade between the states."

No formal recommendations for dealing with the evil are made in the report, but the federal government and the various states are urged to co-operate in attacking the entire problem of interstate trade barriers.

That the Wisconsin tax on margarine, as well as a similar tax in some other states, is of no benefit to the dairy farmer is demonstrated by the Wallace report, which asserts that, if it were possible to prohibit the consumption of margarine entirely, it would not add more than 2 cents per pound to the price of butter.

One point not stressed in the report, but nevertheless of primary importance, is that margarine made from cottonseed oil is one of the most healthful of foods. It is used as a spread for bread by the lower income groups of the nation who cannot pay butter prices. When the cost of margarine is doubled by imposition of such a tax as that in Wisconsin, it simply takes away from the poor man and his family a healthful, strength-building food and leaves him without anything to take its place.

Encouragement of trade between the states, rather than restriction, is the thing needed if the United States is ever to emerge entirely from the business depression. There should be absolutely no artificial barriers to free trade anywhere within the confines of this nation.

There is, likewise, much wisdom to Secretary Wallace's condemnation of state-conducted "buy-at-home" campaigns. Such advertising serves merely to hamper commerce between the states and is conducive to enlarging the restrictive barriers already erected by taxes levied against out-of-state goods.

THE SPIRIT OF NIEMOELLER

When the history of Nazi Germany is finally written, when the evaluation of time has given perspective to the pen, one man and his flock will stand out in its pages as the Cross dominates the altars of free churches and free peoples.

A Berlin throng last week crowded the Lutheran Church of Jesus Christ in suburban Dahlem to pray for the imprisoned pastor of that congregation—the Rev. Martin Niemöller, World War hero as a submarine commander and a disciple of Him whose name his church bears. He would not yield his faith to the service of the temporal sovereign who seeks to silence him with persecution. In some concentration camp he waits the inevitable day when freedom shall be restored to his people. His spirit, one may be sure, cannot be broken.

Consider the power of this man that Hitler would silence. And the power of his message. In a land in which even a hint of disrespect for Der Fuehrer means prison or death, his parishioners filled the church. The service was adapted in tone to the Easter season, yet, as the minister bluntly said, "the congregation well knows why we come together on this day and in this church." Certainly, though Hitler may keep imprisoned the body, his spirit filled that church and in his martyrdom is built the conviction of a better day.

More than one light burns brightly in the Germany that Hitler would darken with the futility of the Middle Ages. One flames higher and yet higher in a sea of despair. Niemöller is more of the German people and their fine heritage than is the Austrian usurper. His vision does not require a mountain top. It is of his soul and of the souls of uncounted millions in his Germany.

CHILDREN'S WEEK

The period from March 6 to 12 is being observed all over the nation as National Children's Week. In schools, community centers, churches and health institutions the thought is being stressed that the future of the United States depends entirely upon the children now being trained and educated for citizenship.

The child of today, in this country, enjoys advantages undreamed a few decades ago. Advances in the sciences have brought to childhood a freedom from many of the handicaps which used to doom countless thousands to a lifetime of almost hopeless competition. Not all those handicaps have gone, but the progress which has been made is sufficient for pride and the promise for the future contains excuse for fullest optimism.

The younger generation of this period is, beyond question, a finer generation than the world has known before. Finer in physique, in health, in intelligence and in morality. Children of school age are thinking more of the problems of economics, of social life, of government and of the world. They are watching, with keen-eyed understanding, the inevitable blunderings of their adults. They will enter upon their own responsibilities, in a few years, with a better knowledge of the dangers and the opportunities that life presents.

The problems they will meet involve issues so vital the fate of democracy may well hinge upon their decisions. Better distribution of the wealth of the nation is one. Increased production of values and adjustment of the social order to meet the rapid replacement of human labor by machinery is another. On the solution of such problems as these depends the realization, or abandonment, of the dream the forefathers had when they wrote that, among the inalienable rights of man, are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Every week, every day, every hour of the year is, properly, the children's, first of all. But it is well that once in each twelve-month there should be this special week, to revivify our realization that, upon the children of today, rests all the hope we possess for the future of America and of the world.

TENNESSEE VALLEY TAX MUDDLE

One of the most annoying developments growing out of the Tennessee valley power project is its tax complications. This should occasion no great surprise for it was pointed out, time after time, in advance, that the broader the sphere of public ownership the greater the restriction upon the local tax source.

Paradoxically, many of those local officials who were most zealous in belittling this angle of the matter are now faced with the problem they helped to create.

Before TVA every piece of public utility equipment and property was levied upon. This was one of the most prolific sources of state and municipal revenue. Even the land under the water behind the power dams came in for taxation. With the transfer of all this property to public ownership this source immediately dried up. Thus Tennessee state authorities are forced to turn elsewhere for revenue or suspend, or restrict, many of the state's most important functions.

The state of Georgia is not too far removed to feel the financial effects of this change in ownership. In Fannin county more than 50 per cent of all taxes were paid by the public utility company taken over by TVA. For purposes of taxation the transferred property is valued at $2,000,000. Several school districts have thereby lost 75 per cent of their revenue. There is no private source from which the loss may be replaced.

In an effort to recoup this lost revenue, legislators in Tennessee, as well as in Georgia, have introduced measures to tax government owned utility property and to levy against gross receipts from the sale of electricity distributed by municipally-owned utilities.

Thus the well-known little fellow, who was to benefit from public ownership, not only contributed his share toward building TVA, but may now be called upon to make up the deficit by a direct or indirect tax upon his electric current.

Long consideration leads a German physicist to conclude that nothing is real. Thus we come around to a fascinating question, "Hitler—does he exist?"

The war of ideologies brings a new and comic type to world affairs—the one who pleads for peace and quiet at the top of the lungs.

The world for the nonce appears to have relaxed. The Spanish thing seems to be over at long last, and March came in like Selassie, the ex-conquering lion.

Editorial of the Day

FASCIST FANTASY

(From The New Orleans Times-Picayune.)

The most fantastic Fascist-Nazi diversion of the current year is the charge published Saturday from Rome that "the great democracies are preparing to start a war shortly to destroy the totalitarian states." Its author is Virginia Grayda, Fascist Goebbels, who is credited with saying "unofficially" things that Mussolini wants said but for which he is not ready to take official responsibility. French and British rearmament programs are cited to bolster the accusation whose obvious purpose is to persuade "totalitarian" peoples that the next war their dictators start will be a purely "defensive" war, forced on them by bloodthirsty and conquest-crazy democracies.

All German and Italian subjects of normal reasoning powers must know that neither German nor Italian independence has been menaced during the long drive of their respective dictators for armaments vastly in excess of any needed for self-defense. And all know finally that the actual aggressions committed during the present period have been committed by the same dictators.

The record of European developments makes it clear that the only way the great democracies can hope to insure their own peace and safety and the peace and safety of the civilized world through this sorely plagued time is to arm so strongly that they can defend both against attack by the dictators.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEW DEALERS JITTERY WASHINGTON, March 8.—To put it very mildly indeed, the President's business appeasement gestures have given the New Dealers an advanced case of jitters. This once all-powerful group of White House advisers and high officials has never gone in for "appeasement" anyone, being composed of ardent fellows who put accomplishment of the New Deal's policies above every other consideration. And now they fear that those policies may be either sacrificed or softened in order to spare the feelings of business.

As yet, the situation is formless. The opposing forces within the administration have not had time to fly at one another's throats. Indeed, several of the most important New Dealers, like Thomas G. Corcoran, who is ill, and Attorney General Frank Murphy, who has just returned from a Florida vacation, have not been at their posts. But, if business appeasement continues, and if any of the New Dealers' fears seem about to be realized, there will certainly be another great palace struggle on the pattern of last year's spending crisis.

The reasons for the New Dealers' jitters are obvious. The senate is already considering cutting the supplies of the New Dealers' most cherished project, the monopoly investigation. Reforms proposed for this session, such as a public health program and a measure to regulate investment trusts, may be sidetracked. Conservative congressional bigwigs and conservative Treasury officials are paring to knock the stuffing out of the remains of the New Deal tax laws. And, worst of all, congressional economists have taken courage, and the sacred spending policy itself is in serious danger.

STORM SIGNAL Already there are interesting weather signs of approaching storm. Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, who has taken the public lead in advocating spending, is reported to be threatening to resign if spending is abandoned. The CIO, strongest of political groups allied to the New Dealers, is convulsed with apprehension and annoyance at another report, that Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins has reached an understanding on amendments to the labor relations act with his new business friends. Among the New Deal rank and file, a surprise at Hopkins' recent goings-on is plainly visible, although Hopkins' former position as the chief of all New Dealers has saved him from open criticism as yet.

If the storm does come, it will rage most violently around the three issues of spending, the securities laws and the labor relations act. The New Dealers will ask the President to take the most aggressive tone possible. The administration conservatives and supporters of business will plead for a more peaceful approach. And once more the President will have to decide between the two big parties of his subordinates.

PRO AND CON Moreover, it would be a grave error to suppose that the struggle's outcome has been decided in advance. Such things as Hopkins' Iowa speech and the President's recent pronouncement on tax should be taken as mere gestures committing the President to nothing except where the commitment is specified. Business appeasement can be abandoned overnight, if the New Dealers think it dangerous enough to fight over, and if the President accepts the New Dealers' view.

Their arguments will be simple. They think that this is a reform administration, certain to lose its point if reforms are sacrificed. They believe religiously in the spending policy, and predict economic disaster from economy. They point out that there is no chance on earth that business appeasement will woo large numbers of business men to the New Deal. And they contend that, if the country is in conservative mood, it will vote Republican anyway, in which case it would be foolish for the President to try to catch votes by diluting his liberalism.

The conservative argument, already forcibly stated by numerous cabinet members and congressional leaders, is even simpler. As one man put it, "How can we hope to win in 1940, if we go into the election with 10,000,000 unemployed and an increasing deficit?" It must be admitted that the conservative argument is more brutally pointed than that of the New Dealers, whichever may be right. But it should also be remembered that, in the past, the President has generally thought the New Dealers more convincing in the end.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Discouragement may oft impose its burden on man's soul; Yet still the heart's hope, you can see The picture of the whole.

The warp and woof of human growth, Too close, may tangled seem, Yet faith must know more perfect grows The pattern of our dream.

Wisconsin May Yet Learn.

There are rumors afoot to indicate that even Wisconsin, that state most cruel in its economic pressure against the south, may some day learn better ways. For the sake of late comers who may not be familiar with the entire picture, a few items of recent data should be given:

Margarine, the poor man's spread for bread, his substitute for the more expensive butter, a healthful, strength-building food which is made, chiefly, from cottonseed oil.

Cottonseed oil is an important southern product.

Wisconsin is one of the largest producers of dairy products, including butter, among all the states.

The legislature of Wisconsin got the idea that sales of butter were injured, and the price of butter held down, by margarine competition. So it set to work to devise an effective means of keeping margarine out of Wisconsin.

The result was a state tax of 15 cents per pound on margarine. Of course the result was of no benefit to the butter producers, the price didn't go up more than a cent or two. And a lot of the poorer folk in Wisconsin were deprived of any form of spread for their bread, at all.

But Wisconsin Seeks Southern Trade.

Despite this outrageous impost against a southern product, the business interests of Wisconsin continue efforts to sell their products in the south. And, be it said to the credit of southern legislators, there has as yet been no attempt at retaliatory taxation against those products. They even advertise in great billboards the qualities of Wisconsin butter. And they sell quite a little in Georgia and other southern states, too.

But, here and there over the south, individuals are realizing what Wisconsin has done to us, in respect to cottonseed oil. And the growing resentment is taking tangible form. It may not be very long before Wisconsin people begin to suspect they have cut off their own nose to spite their face.

For instance: There is a businessman in Atlanta who, for years, has been one particular nose of shoes. Recently he realized these shoes are manufactured in a Wisconsin city. So he switched to shoes made in another state. But the important point is he wrote to that Wisconsin manufacturer and told why he was not buying his shoes any more. And the president of the Wisconsin shoe factory wrote a lengthy, and revealing, letter in reply.

Another State Reacts.

There is another anecdote going around. In another cotton belt state the highway department had advertised for bids on several hundred thousand dollars' worth of road machinery.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

They'll Laugh at Us WASHINGTON, March 8.—Some happy day another generation of Americans will have a cackle at the expense of this one for our gullibility in the presence of a plague of numbers fakers, calling themselves economists, who persuaded us that wrong was right, that loss was profit and that a crashing failure was equivalent to a smashing success. They put a spell on us—that's what they did—and convinced us we could spend our way out of debt when anybody's little boy could have shown with a pencil and paper that this way was against the rules of arithmetic and the unchangeable examples of the past.

At present, after more than six years of chancing on such advice, there comes a warning from Pat Harrison, the chairman of the senate finance committee, that unless we stop squandering economic chaos is inevitable, which is another way of saying that the United States government will go through the wringer like any other mismanaged business.

This is the first time since the innocents rallied around early in the first New Deal that the charge of "school of management" has been charged at the house and the first time in the life of the Roosevelt government that the people have troubled their thoughts with the truth.

Waived

Our Doubts

Back in the early stages there were many who had their doubts but waived them without much resistance in the presence of the depressing fact that saving and economy in their own affairs had left them broke in the great crash. That experience was said to prove that saving and thrift were folly and extravagance and waste new virtues.

Meanwhile, from time to time, businessmen were still compelled to do business by the old arithmetic and threatened with jail for any resort to the new, and uneasy feeling of such little bothers as taxes and costs was met with scornful oratory about well-fed clubmen, copper-heads and Tories.

The cost will be high, but one result will be the exposure of the frauds who came into Washington disguised as minor statisticians and office managers and were imposing on the affairs of the American government their personal interpretations of figures and debating on truths which were not arguable but fixed.

There Were

No Rules

Simple realities of mathematics became subjects for whimsical ruling to the contrary. There were no rules, and individual authorities often disagreed with each other and both disagreed with obvious facts, but the herd was on the people and they could not even question, much less argue.

Deficits became assets and the spending mounted toward that height at which the whole column of figures would topple and bring down with it the despised American system. There were economists who obviously believed that this would be the best way to destroy the old method—which was not worth saving, anyway—and permit the substitution of a new system from one quarter or another of Europe.

All this has been accompanied by a sneering and domineering demeanor toward any who presumed to mention old fundamentals, but the time has come now when a stand is being made now so much, immediately, against further spending as against the philosophy, so-called, of irresponsible, mischievous and cynical world-shakers come to power quietly and almost secretly by casual appointment.

Nations

Go Broke

Harrison's declaration—which repudiated the "anti" group of the Democrats—calls for a public understanding of the fact that, if the spending continues, then the nation must go broke and, in the way that nations have when broke, bail itself out of debt by repudiation. If a nation repudiates, those who hold its bonds or money are the victims unless laws then be made to compel those who hold goods to sell them at fixed prices in depreciated money.

Harrison hasn't said the nation will go broke. That would be a statesmanlike and a realist language, but that is the common man's interpretation of what he did say.

And he did say: "If everyone connected with the operation of the government, whether in the executive or legislative department, will realize that a serious situation is confronting us, and counsel together and co-operate in mapping out a plan and unflinchingly and without political consideration, work toward that end, we can accomplish results that will bring financial stability to our government."

With world conditions unsettled, with threats and rumors of wars being heard on every hand, American statesmanship demands that the credit of the United States be preserved and our own house placed in order. I have no confidence in the economic philosophy that we must spend ourselves out of this economic disorder.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THE SPEECHES AND FOOD WERE GOOD

Meeting yesterday at the Georgia experiment station near Griffin, the vegetable growers of Georgia and others interested in that field of endeavor, heard excellent speeches, ate delightful food.

They heard, among others, Thomas L. Ayers, economist with the AAA, speak on the problems of southern agriculture and how they affect the vegetable grower. They heard also Earl L. French, executive of one of the largest concerns in America devoted to the buying and shipping of farm produce, speak on problems of marketing.

They heard some new ideas; many sound ones repeated. "You cannot deal singly with these problems," said French. "They are a matter for co-operative effort."

They heard him, speaking straight from the shoulder, say: "The vegetable and fruit growers of California, aided by their state legislatures, have been able to put a brand on their oranges and their fruit, even walnuts. Recently the state of Indiana has set up a state brand and state standards which are higher even than those of the United States government. Maine markets her potatoes under state supervision as to standards and brand. Florida has come along. Idaho and other states have joined in."

"I can tell you that the vegetable and fruit growers of Georgia will meet stiffer competition not only on the national market but on their local markets. People will pay a premium for graded, standard quality produce. You may as well make up your minds that competition will become stiffer and stiffer until you meet this as a co-operative association. There is no need to set up state barriers. They won't work. They may keep you on slippery ground for a while. But not for long. You lose in the end. You must meet competition and service."

The speeches and the food were good—

SO WERE THE COMMENTS

The comments, too, were good. They heard their own president, R. F. Sams Jr., speak of the problem of the buyers who came to the Atlanta market seeking sweet potatoes. The buyer wanting 1,000 bushels of standard graded potatoes, might find that many bushels but they would be of different colors and sizes.

"Think what an advantage it would be if we had an organization and an office which could supply buyers and the growers with what was required?"

All these things, of course, seem obvious. One wondered, listening, why it was necessary to say them; why the growers long ago did not have an organization for meeting market problems?

Yet from the floor there were questions as to where and how one might obtain grading standards?

The question becomes, then, what will they do about it?

Georgia groups have a habit of meeting, hearing excellent speeches full of good, sound sense; eating delightful lunches composed of Georgia products, and then going home to do nothing at all until the next meetings are announced. We meet and meet and meet, in Georgia. And we talk and talk and talk about it.

Yet, the temper of this meeting did seem different. There was a committee appointed which will try to work out some sort of information service as to markets and which will seek to cover Georgia markets and those of other states.

"SHOOT YOUR REPRESENTATIVES"

When a discussion came up regarding organized independent merchants, there was action. The chain grocery stores vigorously were defended as keeping down the cost of living and of being the chief outlet for the vegetable growers of the state.

"Go home and shoot your representative if he votes for that bill!" shouted one grizzled farmer.

"I'm going to shoot mine," said another.

They were facetious but behind it was a very obvious intensity of feeling.

All speakers defended the chain grocery stores and their part in raising the living standards in so far as foods, especially fresh vegetables, were concerned.

Said Earl L. French: "Look at it coldly and without prejudice. If the chain stores are eliminated the spread between the grower and the consumer is widened. The cost will go up. Consumers will have less to spend. There is no other alternative. When the chain grocery stores go, then with them goes efficiency of marketing which brings down the price of foodstuffs. The vegetable growers of the state will suffer a tremendous loss; the people will be able to eat fewer fresh vegetables. That is the inescapable fact."

The vegetable growers, harassed by trade barrier laws in other states and seeing their best markets, the chain grocery stores, threatened, were in a fighting mood. I think the boys were facetious about shooting their representatives. I wouldn't be entirely sure. They would feel like so doing.

As Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, said: "Every other group, interested in legislation, has its high-powered lobby workers and its high-priced, capable lawyers. When they get what they want, the legislature gives the farmers what is left."

The Fable of a Traveler Who Found an Unused Remedy

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A certain traveler, who was an ignorant layman without knowledge of creeds or theology, visited a Christian land and came upon a book named The Gospels.

As he read the age-old story, he said to himself: "This Jesus was born as a man, yet He was more than a man. I wonder why He came to earth."

He turned a page and came upon the answer: "To do the will of Him that sent me," said the traveler, "but still I wonder what that will consisted in. What did it require?"

He turned the pages again until he came to the place where Jesus stood before Pilate, saying: "To this end I was born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth."

"Now I must discover this truth for myself," said the traveler. He read eagerly for a time, and then cried in astonishment: "Wonder of wonders! It was indeed a truth worth bringing. He told men a simple and certain way to transform this sad world into

WESLEYAN'S DRIVE OFF TO GOOD START

District Rallies Launch
Campaign for $60,000 To Repurchase College.

MACON, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—Directors of the campaign to raise $60,000 to repurchase properties of Wesleyan College from a bondholders' committee sounded a note of confidence of success today following a series of district rallies.

The campaign will continue until March 15, the date on which an option to repurchase the property expires.

The Dublin and Griffin districts, at rallies yesterday, set $15,000 as goals. The Savannah district started its drive for $50,000 following meetings in Statesboro and Savannah.

Meetings were held today in Athens, Waycross, Valdosta and Marietta. President H. T. Quillian, of LaGrange College, reported every member of the faculty pledged to contribute to the campaign.

A Moultrie church set a goal of $3,000 yesterday and reporting today more than one-third of the amount raised, although the campaign there does not open until Friday.

Meetings will be held Thursday in Fort Valley, Cordele, Gainesville and Rome.

Like an Old Shoe, Says Firm Chief Of Native Atlanta

Jack Chertok, who left his native Atlanta in 1925 and went to Hollywood to enter the motion picture business, returned yesterday to declare "Even with all the changes, Atlanta feels as familiar and comfortable to me as an old shoe."

Now a successful producer of "shorts" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Chertok arrived from Washington, where he and his wife saw a preview of a four-reel production on the federal prison system.

He will stay here for a week's visit with his uncle, Dr. Louis C. Roughlin, prominent local physician.

Chertok is known as one of the movie capital's most successful producers of short subjects. A production of his, Robert Benchley's "How to Use Your Lunch Hour Economically," is now playing at the Loew's Grand theater here.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A GREAT SPEECH.

The impressive observance of the 150th anniversary of the first meeting of the national congress under the constitution, held in the nation's capital last Saturday at noon, brought forward great utterances from three great Americans—Speaker Bankhead, Chief Justice Hughes, and President Roosevelt. One could not listen to these speeches without a deepened sense of allegiance to our constitution and its pledge of liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

I was particularly impressed by Speaker Bankhead's clear warning of subversive influences too long unchecked in our land, and it was reassuring to hear the President say:

"Today, with many other democracies, the United States will give no encouragement to the belief that our processes are outworn, or that we will approvingly watch the return of forms of government which for two thousand years have proved their tyranny and their instability alike." I was glad to note his use of the term "peaceful means" in our efforts to preserve religious and personal freedom for our own and other peoples.

But the speech of the occasion, in my judgment, was that of Chief Justice Hughes. I only wish I had the space to quote every word of that great and timely speech, but I can only quote this paragraph:

"The most significant fact in connection with this anniversary is that after 150 years, notwithstanding expansion of territory, enormous increase in population and profound economic changes, despite direct attack and subversive influences, there is every indication that the vastly preponderant sentiment of the American people is that our form of government shall be preserved. Our guarantees of fair trade, of due process in the protection of life, liberty and property—which stands between the citizen and arbitrary power—of religious freedom, of free speech, free press, and free assembly, are the safeguards which have been erected against the abuses threatened by gusts of passion and prejudice which would destroy the basic interests of democracy. The people usually get what they want. With the ultimate power of change through amendment in their hands they are always able to obtain whatever a preponderant and abiding sentiment demands." Well may we be grateful for a man of such ability and courage and character as Charles Evans Hughes to fill the tremendously important office of Chief Justice of our nation's supreme court. Breathing the atmosphere of religious liberty from his earliest youth, this Baptist deacon speaks the language of the fathers with a conviction much needed today.

SMALL BUSINESS BANKS PROPOSED IN CONGRESS BILLS

Regional Institutions Patterned After the Home Loan System Are Suggested by Solons.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP) Legislation to establish a new system of regional intermediate credit banks to extend credit to independent small business was introduced in both senate and house today.

Senator Logan Democrat, Kentucky, offered the senate measure and Representatives Patman, Democrat, Texas, and Voorhis, Democrat, California, the house bill.

The legislation, sponsored by the American Federation of Labor Business, would create a setup patterned after the Home Loan Bank System.

The identical bills would establish 12 intermediate credit banks with $120,000,000 capital from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Local credit associations would operate under these with the RFC subscribing up to $100,000 in preferred stock for each of these, with a total of $80,000,000 to be provided for this purpose.

Common stock subscriptions in these local associations would be insured up to $5,000 by an insurance fund of $100,000,000 from the RFC.

Another small business organization, the National Small Businessmen's Association, announced today it would seek legislation to provide easier credit for small business. DeWitt M. Emery, of Akron, Ohio, president, also said the group would hold a convention of small businessmen at Detroit June 27 to 29.

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, meanwhile, introduced a bill "to promote business and economic research" by establishing and maintaining, in connection with state university schools of business administration, research stations to co-operate with the Department of Commerce.

The bill would authorize annual payments ranging from $20,000 to $40,000 per year to each school.

CIO PEACE PLAN STUDIED BY AFL

accompanied by the first conference by Daniel J. Tobin, head of the powerful teamsters' union, who previously had declined to serve as a negotiator because of other duties.

With the newsreel cameras focused on the scene in a small conference room at the Labor Department, Harry C. Bates, spokesman for the AFL delegation, said the federation's peace committee "entered the meeting with an earnest desire for an honorable settlement."

There was no mention of the CIO proposal until Lewis quickly thrust it before the conference with his request that it be analyzed.

When the first session recessed, Bates read to newspapermen a statement prepared by the conferees. It said:

"The conference made a preliminary canvass of its problems and met briefly with Secretary of Labor Perkins.

"The conference agreed to recess and meet in New York city at 8 p. m., Friday night, March 10 at which time it will consider proposals made yesterday by the CIO or any other suggestions that might be laid before it."

Secretary Perkins told reporters she discussed with the conferees only technical matters relating to the time and place of the next meeting.

Tobin refused to discuss his reasons for taking part in the negotiations, but reliable AFL sources said President Roosevelt had urged President William Green, of the AFL, to induce Tobin to participate. Tobin has been a leading advocate of a peaceful settlement of labor's difficulties.

No! Girls Don't Do Too Much Petting and Kissing Before Marriage, Incensed Pi Pi's Vote

"Do girls today do too much petting and kissing before marriage?" A vote of "NO" was registered by the raised-hand method yesterday by the Pi Pi Club, meeting at the home of Stella Hillard on Ponce de Leon avenue, when they heard that an affirmative vote was made by men in a recent survey. Yolande Gwin, of The Constitution staff, at the left, conducted the poll which resulted in a defensive vote on reputation and manners. Officers of the club are Mary Frances Broach, president; Mary Clapp, vice president; Sue Pierson, secretary, and Jane Jarvis, treasurer.

PRESIDENT SCANS NEW TAX REFORMS

000 next year. Bell will continue his treasury job and thus, by his own wish, remain in the civil service in which he worked up from the status of government messenger over a period of 27 years.

No Party Affiliation. Smith, like Bell, claims affiliation with no party but he was given his Michigan position by Democratic Governor Frank Murphy, who as attorney general in the federal cabinet is understood to have influenced the new appointment.

Technically, Smith succeeds Lewis Douglas, the bicycle-riding professor, who was the last man to hold the title of budget director and who quit in 1934 in protest against New Deal spending. Smith has a hobby, too—he makes furniture at a home workshop.

The tax talks at the White House were understood to be still in a tentative stage, although it has been learned that the treasury favors drastic revision of corporate income taxes, particularly restoration of the privilege corporations formerly had of balancing their operating losses of bad years against the profits of succeeding years. Modification of the capital gain and loss provisions, inventory valuation and restoration of the consolidated income tax return for affiliated companies are other possible changes.

No New Deal Retreat. Hopkins, holding his first press conference since he made a business co-operation plea in his maiden speech as secretary of commerce at Des Moines, Iowa, asserted the business gestures did not mean any retreat from New Deal reforms. He also objected to the "business appeasement" program.

He explained that the New Deal always has sought business recovery and said its intentions seemed more obvious now only because the administration's reform legislation had already been completed.

He declared that national income has increased and unemployment decreased since Mr. Roosevelt became president. The secretary forecast further business gains this year which he estimated would bring the national income to between $68,000,000,000 and $70,000,000,000, compared with $62,000,000,000 last year and $70,000,000,000 in the banner recovery year of 1937. President Roosevelt has asserted that present tax rates would be sufficient to balance the budget if the national income could be lifted to $80,000,000,000 a year.

Hopkins said only political rivals or cynics could doubt that administration leaders were sincere and intended to translate their recent business co-operation statements into positive action.

"How absurd it would be," he said, "to make statements and have the American people assume we meant business if we did not follow up by action."

"I certainly was never brought up in a school of thought to like the notion of simply getting up and making speeches. Words may not be too important. Life is just too short unless you're going to do something about it."

He added, "All I can say as to details is that I am carrying on discussions on a number of fronts concerning business recovery. None of the proposals are panaceas. All together will help and help substantially. I would rather not comment on details until they find expression in affirmative proposals."

Girls, Piqued by Men's Opinions, Tear the Male Apart in Own Poll

They Pertly Disagree on Many Points, Especially Intelligence—Women Don't Care If Men Have Any at All.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

American men—those who dare to give their opinions on the fair sex—received an oral calling down yesterday.

Members of Pi Pi Club, one of the Big Four in high school groups, polled a defensive vote on their reputation as set forth in a recent nationwide survey on "What the Men of America Think About Women."

The men, it seems, think the women are too spoiled, too often nagging and jealous, too willing to pet and kiss before marriage and not concerned with staying romantic, and too busy outside the home.

The Pi Pi Club meeting, at the home of Stella Hillard on Ponce de Leon avenue, decided the men better take stock of themselves before voting on the girls, but agreed with the men that companionship is the most sought after quality in a mate, and that brunets were the favored type with blonde and redheads running second and third. They agreed, however, with the men, that married men are happier than bachelors and, as one of the young girls asked, "What fun does an old bachelor have, anyway?"

Intelligence rated second to good companionship in the votes polled by the men, but this quality got zero regarding the girls' opinion of the men.

Sample questions as issued in the nationwide survey to the men, and voted on yesterday by the girls, and answers, were:

"Do women make enough effort to keep themselves neat in appearance after marriage as before?"

The girls voted a majority "yes" to this against the majority "no" by the men.

"Do women make enough effort to keep themselves charming after marriage as before?"

The men voted "no" to this, while it received a majority "yes" from the girls.

"Do you think girls today do too much petting and kissing before marriage?"

The answer was a 24-to-2 "no" vote by the girls against a large majority of "yesses" by the men.

The question caused discussion among many of the girls who stated that questions of this nature could not be voted on collectively, for kissing and petting depend entirely on the girls. "Some of the girls do and some don't, so that's that," they said.

"Are women too demanding of kisses and other romantic attentions from their husbands after marriage?"

Unusual as it might seem, the girls voted "yes" to this against the "no" by the men.

In the question, "Do women make enough effort to keep themselves as romantic after marriage as they were before?" the girls voted "no" as did the men, but added that "it's only because the men run around and forget to romanticize themselves that the women don't."

"Among the men you know, which faults are most common?" Jealousy was answered equally by men and girls.

"Do you think the women of today give too much time to things outside of the home?"

Girls voted "no" against "yes" for the men. A few of the girls added that they thought a woman should interest herself in something, either bridge or club work.

"Should women hold jobs before they are married?"

On this question, but to the question, "Do you believe women should hold jobs after they are married if their husbands are capable of supporting them?" the girls decided was a case of circumstances altering the case, because sometimes a man may be capable of making a living, and just be too lazy to work, and, on the other hand, if a woman is gifted as an artist, writer or other specialty, it would be all right for her to work. The men voted "no" to women working after marriage.

$10,000 IS SOUGHT FOR PARK'S UPKEEP

Appropriation Recommended by House Group for Ocmulgee Area.
By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—An appropriation of $10,000 for maintenance and general upkeep of the new Ocmulgee National monument at Macon, Ga., designed to preserve historical Indian relics, was recommended in the Interior Department annual supply bill reported to the house today.

Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, in whose district the project is located, succeeded

House of Progress Bedroom Charms

Exquisite Furniture Is Chosen To Appeal to the Fair Sex, and a Peek Shows It Really Does.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

Charming is the word. It will fit the tasty and attractive appearance of milady's bedroom to be shown as one of the several convenient and modern rooms in the cottage on the stage at the city auditorium during The Constitution's "House of Progress Exposition."

The bedroom and the dining room will be fitted most tastefully and appropriately by Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc. Other rooms will be furnished by other exhibitors. But the Sterchi bedroom will be among rooms that will appeal to the fair sex. In it the well-known furniture house will place the pretty four-piece set shown herewith.

Sheraton Suite.
This furniture is an Eighteenth Century Sheraton suite. It is of solid mahogany, with swirl mahogany fronts and satinwood and ebony inlays. The poster bed is distinguished for its graceful lines, with octagon-shaped posts and with graceful flame finish. The long, attractive mirror in the vanity and the beautiful chest of drawers have especial appeal to those who love modern furniture. The four pieces to be installed in the room are the bed, the vanity, the chest of drawers and the bench.

The furniture or decorative department of Sterchi's will complete the beauty of the room by the addition of a handsome blue tweed text broadloom rug. Blue curtains at windows will add the touch of harmony so well desired, with also the walls painted in blue dusty rose.

Each room in the pretty five-room cottage will be fitted up to suit the ideas of each exhibitor, and will add much to the general appearance of the home. The dining room will be furnished with suitable furnishings from Sterchi's.

Built in Sections.
This unusually well-built and modern cottage is now pretty well on the way to completion on the auditorium stage. It was built in sections, easily removable, in the yards of the West Lumber Company, by Hardin & Ramsey, local contractors, with Alvin Roger Moore as architect. It is to be sold to the highest bidder under sealed bids, and at the conclusion of the exposition removed to a pretty lot in Chelsea Heights, the bid to include the lot, and also the addition of one more bedroom. However, the furnishings are not included in the sale.

"The House of Progress Exposition" opens Monday at 2 o'clock, and will continue for one week. Open daily from 2 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

Holland's Zuider Zee project, which is pushing back the sea to make new lands for the Dutch people, will put into cultivation 550,000 acres of fertile land.

The above shows the handsome four-piece bedroom suite to be installed in the cottage on the stage at the city auditorium, one of the features of The Constitution's "House of Progress Exposition," opening Monday, March 13, at 2 o'clock. The home is to be completely furnished by various exhibitors. The suite shown above will be installed just as is shown here by Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc.

SALES TAX BILLS KILLED BY HOUSE of the defeat of the Lanham bill but he was voted down, 89 to 81. Representative Henderson Lanham, of Floyd county, chairman of the ways and means committee and an administration spokesman on tax legislation, gave notice to the house he would ask reconsideration of the defeat of the four bills this morning, but administrationists made it evident they saw little chance for passage of any of the bills.

The votes taken last night all were on adoption of the three substitute bills. The Lanham bill got only 86 affirmative votes, 17 less than the 103 required for final passage. Even if the result last night had been reversed and the bill given 91 affirmative votes it would have taken a strong rally to muster the additional votes needed for passage. A bill can be adopted on the bare majority of a quorum but in order to obtain final passage it must muster a majority of the whole house or 103 votes.

After the Lanham bill failed the house went through the formality of killing the sales tax bill, the bill not carrying a referendum. It obtained only 37 votes. There were 87 against it. The roll was not even called on this vote. The Allison-Williams luxury tax bill, providing for the 20 per cent levy on so called luxuries, went down to defeat, 118 to 66, while the sales tax bill, carrying the referendum clause, was lost, 132 to 61. Administration leaders joined independents in voting to kill the referendum plan.

Earlier the house beat off by a 10-vote margin an attempt to strike the taxing provision from the administration-sponsored 4 per cent hybrid sales tax measure. The amendment would have killed the bill, presented late Tuesday as the administration announced an attempt to reconcile differences of opinion of house members over taxation.

Nerves frayed by three days of constant debate on the subject, the legislators took up the new tax bill section-by-section, as they had done with the 3 per cent retail sales tax first suggested and the substitute luxury tax of 20 per cent.

Several legislators were outspoken in predicting defeat of the proposal, described as a combination retail sales and luxury tax on "non-essentials." The vote against the amendment killing it immediately, however, was 85 to 75, and Representative Hunt Maxwell, of Muscogee, explained he felt the bill should have a full hearing, although he intended to vote against it.

Completion of the house study of the bill placed three tax suggestions before the house. The 3 per cent tax bill carries a provision that it shall not become effective until approved in an election to be held within 15 days after assembly approval. The luxury tax and "non-essentials" levy do not carry this provision.

Vote Means Death.
Legislators had asserted previously that a statewide vote meant the death of the sales tax plan. An amendment offered by Representative Wilmer Lanier, of Richmond, late today and adopted by the house extends exemptions under the 4 per cent bill to "all foods for man and beast."

The section which these words replaced previously had included "bread in loaf form; rice, fresh vegetables and produce; fresh fish; seafoods and oysters; poultry and eggs; coffee; tea, sugar, cane syrup and molasses; rice, grits, corn, meal, flour, baking powder, salt, pepper, beans, peas; salt and pickled meats; canned foods selling at retail for 10 cents per can or less; and water soap, the retail price of which is 10 cents or less per bar or package; lard, lard compounds, and cooking oil; and coal and wood for domestic use."

Lanier said he thought taxpayers could pay a levy on soap, coal and wood if all food was exempt.

Grand Jury Plea.
Earlier Representative J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette, informed the house the grand jury of his county had sent him a telegram opposing a sales tax or any new taxes and urging that he voted against such measures.

"They don't have to tell me to oppose any new taxes," he said. "You can't solve the state's problems with a tax—and with a half-baked tax at that."

Culpepper said "I don't see how it is possible in all this confusion and chaos to do a fair job about putting on taxes."

Action would not be in time to help the schools, he continued, and added that the Governor could handle the school crisis by pressing allocated funds from the State Treasury to pay the school teachers.

He said a former Governor did this and it could be done again without the passage of any new laws.

"All this talk about the schools don't amount to a hill of beans," he continued. He said the Governor could borrow $3,500,000 under the constitution and could impress $980,000 in addition from allocated funds.

Utilities Hit.
Preceding Culpepper to the floor, Representative Henderson Lanham, of Floyd, who introduced the "non-essentials" sales tax plan, said:

"They tell me overnight that the utilities don't like this 4 per cent bill and that I've got to withdraw it."

"That's a pretty come off. Well, I'm not going to withdraw it. You can kill this measure or do whatever you want to with it, but I'll not withdraw it. I guess when we get on a luxury tax bill that the Coca-Cola people don't like, we can't pass that."

"I guess that's right, maybe together the utilities and the Coca-Cola people own the state of Georgia."

The administration launched a drive to hurry along a vote on taxes, following Speaker Harris' observation Tuesday that only seven days remained on which the house could consider house bills, the remaining days being set aside for senate bills.

The legislature adjourns automatically at midnight March 18 and Speaker Harris warned earlier there would be no setting back of the clocks.

Most of the day was spent in discussing the tax situation. Still to be considered is the budget bill calling for expenditures of $100,598,327.28 in the next two years and upwards of 700 other bills of varying importance.

REORGANIZATION BILL PASSES HOUSE

Democrats Beat Back G.O. P. Attempt To Restrict President.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP) A bill empowering President Roosevelt to reorganize the executive branch of the government rolled through the house tonight, 246 to 153, and went to the senate.

Previously, with only a few votes to spare, the house Democratic leadership beat back a determined Republican effort to write into the bill provisions which would have made a presidential order invalid if disapproved by one house of congress within 60 days.

Georgians voting for the bill were: Brown, Cox, Gibbs, Owen, Pace, Peterson, Ramspeck, Tarver and Vinson. Whelchel did not vote.

As the bill stood, it empowered the President to undertake a reorganization of the executive branch of the government with the knowledge that both houses of congress must specifically reject his orders to nullify them.

Measure Modified.
However, the measure had been much modified as compared with the bill which caused such controversy last year and which was finally beaten as opponents cried that it would make the President a "dictator."

A motion to send the bill back to committee was beaten, 246 to 153. The vote on passage, which ensued, followed party lines almost unbrokenly.

The bill directs the President to make an investigation of the executive branch of the government to determine whether changes can be made which would: Reduce expenditures, increase efficiency, group or regroup agencies in accordance with their purposes, reduce the number of agencies, eliminate overlaps and duplication of effort.

How House Voted On Lanham Bill

The house roll call vote defeating the Lanham 4 per cent tax on "non-essentials," the tax measure the administration had hoped would raise $7,000,000 in new taxes, follows:

Vegetable Growers Urge Defeat of Chain Store Tax

Columbus Roberts, Addressing Georgia Association at Experiment Station, Calls for Support of Farmers' Market Legislation.

By RALPH MCGILL.
EXPERIMENT, Ga., March 8.—Georgia vegetable growers and others interested in agriculture, representing 38 organizations of the state and nation, met here today in the fifth annual session of the Georgia Vegetable Growers' Association.

They vigorously defended chain grocery stores as the leading purchasers of Georgia truck produce and as keeping down the cost of living. They earnestly urged the legislature to defeat proposed legislation which they said would drive many chain grocery stores out of business.

They heard their own state commissioner of agriculture, Columbus Roberts, urge grading and standardization, denounce state trade barriers, and urge their support for legislation to create a real farmers' market in Atlanta large enough to care for the southeast-

Hapeville Aflutter Over Bull Fights

"Bull Fights Preferred," Hapeville's latest contribution to the stock market, dipped to a new low yesterday with a positive announcement by members of the Georgia Humane Society that "the whole idea is ridiculous."

There was a noticeable rally toward the close, however, when Senator C. McNeill Leach, American representative of a prominent Mexican maestro, countered with the statement that there will be "no cruelty to animals" involved in the Hapeville version of the popular Spanish pastime.

"We are going ahead with our plans as scheduled," Senator Leach declared, "and I intend to leave for Mexico within the next few days to complete arrangements for the show."

ern section of the state, and for other markets in the state.

They listened to a forthright address by Thomas L. Ayres, principal economist of the southern division of the AAA. Mr. Ayres explained the allotment of acreage for commercial growing of vegetables. Only one county in Georgia has participated in the program. That is Chatham which is designated as a commercial potato county.

They heard the plain statement they faced stiffer and stiffer competition from states wherein growers had adopted grading and labeling and packaging, plus advertising from their own funds and from funds supplied by state legislatures which went intelligently at farm problems.

Must Work Together. They heard the plain statement they could not meet this competition acting as individuals, but must work co-operatively.

They heard their own speakers declare that restrictions of chain grocery stores meant a lowering in the standard of living, increase in vegetable prices and losses to the growers.

They heard Ayres explain that statistics show how the sale of vegetables follows almost exactly the national income. Thus, in depressions, people eat fewer vegetables. Thus, the necessity to keep down the cost of vegetables through economic marketing which, the growers felt, the chain grocery stores did. Ayres, of course, did not comment on the state legislative fight.

Increase in Trucking.

Ayres produced government statistics which compared the income from vegetables of the total farm income. The bureau's figures show that, using the same period, from 1924 to 1929 as a basis, the total income from vegetables has ranged from 102 per cent of the average in 1930 to 67 per cent of the average in 1938. Total vegetable income was lowest in 1932, at 49 per cent of the average, and the total farm income also was lowest in 1932, at 42 per cent of the average.

Vegetable Men See New Experiment Developments

In 1919, in the south central and south Atlantic regions, there were 1,264,000 acres of truck crops. In 1930, this was increased to 2,818,000 acres. Georgia has ranged from 105,000 acres in 1930 to from 95,000 and 114,000 acres per year. The interests of the vegetable growers and those of agriculturists in general are inseparable.

Bluntest speaker was Earl L. French, of New York, representative of one of the nation's largest buyers and shippers of foodstuffs.

He told Georgia growers they must standardize; must grade, and must face stiffer and stiffer competition from states already selling under state brands, and state grading control which is augmented by state appropriations which advertise their products.

He told how Maine had increased threefold the sale of potatoes by adopting a brand and strict grading control. He spoke of California oranges and of Idaho potatoes. Georgia buys each year many carloads of these potatoes, both from Maine and Idaho. He told of how other states, aided by associations and legislatures which were alive to the real problems of the farmers, had tripled sales of farm products by grading, labeling and advertising.

He stressed advertising, mentioning campaigns in as many as 125 newspapers by some stage organizations.

French defended the chain grocery stores, on the basis of practical, sound economy, in that they reduce the spread by economical handling of produce and thereby can sell at lower prices to more people.

There was a great laugh when several members interrupted, shouting that farmers of Georgia should go home and shoot their representatives if they voted to tax the chain stores out of Georgia.

Resolution were adopted opposing both federal and state chain store tax bills, which were said to threaten to restrict the outlet of Georgia growers, widen the cost of distribution, and increase "our cost of living as consumers."

Co-operative Effort.

Committees will be appointed to attempt to work out the marketing problems and initiate the beginning of co-operative effort.

W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph, and C. H. Bishop, of Atlanta, presided at the presentation during the luncheon, of a silver plate, fittingly inscribed, to H. G. Hastings, who was present on his 70th birthday.

There were other interesting papers on the program, and movies of the Japanese beetle were shown to complete the program.

R. F. Sams Jr., of Clarkston, was re-elected president of the Georgia Growers Association. Other officers elected were: D. A. Russell, of Avondale, first vice president; Doc Jones, of Youngs, second vice president, and C. H. Bishop, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer.

Director H. P. Stuckey, of the experiment station, welcomed the guests. A delightful luncheon was served at the station.

STRIKERS PICKET 13 CAPITAL HOTELS

Congressmen and Officials 'Put on the Spot' in Manner of Speaking.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(UP)—Scores of congressmen and high government officials who normally are hyper-sensitive to labor disturbances, were placed in an embarrassing situation tonight when they either had to cross picket lines of striking workers in 13 local hotels, or find temporary living quarters elsewhere.

More than 2,200 service employees walked out when the management refused their demands for a close shop and peace negotiations failed. The hotels meantime, maintained service on a curtailed basis.

The situation was politically precarious for many congressmen who were elected with organized labor's support and for others on whom labor keeps tabs.

Hotels affected were the Willard, Mayflower, Shoreham, Wardman Park, Carlton, Roger Smith, Continental, Harrington, Lee, New Colonial, Lafayette and Raleigh. Senator Wagner, co-author of the national labor relations act, who resides at the Shoreham, left by an unpicketed side entrance this morning. He did not say whether he would return tonight if the entrances were picketed.

Two congress of Industrial Organization vice presidents, Sidney Hillman and Phillip Murray, rose early and checked out of the Carlton, although the strike was called by three locals of two American Federation of Labor unions.

The strike threatened to cause a postponement of the annual White House Correspondents' Association dinner, scheduled for Saturday.

Union leaders said that the hotels demanded an unqualified right to hire and fire without review or contest by the locals. The operators rejected a union pro-

'Smoking Makes Women Ugly and Old,' Nazis Told
BERLIN, March 8.—(UP)—The Reichscongress against "pleasure poisons" meeting at Frankfurt today had developed the slogan: "Smoking makes a woman ugly and prematurely old."
The slogan is part of a campaign to save foreign exchange by reducing German consumption of imported tobacco and alcohol. The congress asserted that "to smoke while drinking appreciably increases "the drunken state."

Atlanta Students To Participate In Production at State University

By Sally Forth.

SEVERAL Atlanta students enrolled at the University of Georgia will take prominent parts in the opening performance of "Romance," to be presented this evening at the Seney-Stovall theater in Athens. The play, written by Edward Sheldon, will be given by members of the State University Dramatic Club, and will attract a number of visitors from near-by towns.

Mary Nell McKoin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McKoin, of this city, and a senior at the university, appears in her ninth consecutive and final theater role in this production. Mary Nell, a veteran favorite with university theater audiences, has often received glowing press notices complimenting the excellence of her performances.

Appearing in the first university theater role will be Helen Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarke, whose dramatic career at the state university will be short-lived, as she graduates in June.

Other Atlantans who will participate in the winter quarter production will be Montez Debnam, Bill Harris and Susan Dillingham. Their fellow performers will include Margaret Darr, Douglas Richard, Betty McDavie, Caroline Brosseau, John McDermott, Freddie Hill, Lee Secrest, William Poppe, Pete Pond, Douglas Watson, Myrtle Nutt, Bruno Mandell and Patric Hovelacque. The latter pair, incidentally, are the foreign exchange students from Italy and France, respectively.

An amusing feature of the production will be a monkey, which was found in Washington and brought to Athens especially for the purpose of playing "Adeline" in the drama. When introduced to the leading lady recently, "Adeline" showed such hostile signs that her facial contours will probably be engraved in a muzzle during the performance.

LISTED among Atlanta's early March visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Jones, of Greensboro, N. C. They are guests of their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McKinney, on Peachtree road, and are being feted at innumerable informal social gatherings. Each day they are figures in small luncheons and dinner parties given by their close friends and hosts. This evening they will be honored guests at a dinner party at the Biltmore hotel and tomorrow the visitors will be entertained at a luncheon at the Capital City Club.

Mrs. Jones, you know, is the former Mrs. Frank W. Butz, of this city, and her marriage to Mr. Jones took place last fall in Louisville, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are popular members of Greensboro's married ranks and since going to the North Carolina city for residence the latter has become prominently identified with cultural and social affairs in which feminine members of Greensboro participate.

WHEN Nell Allison's engagement was announced to Charles Sheldon III, among the first prenuptial parties planned for the young bride-elect was a shower to be given by the Cherokee Study Club. The party takes place today at the Club drive residence of Mrs. George Ripley Jr.

In addition to honoring the bride-elect, the party will be a special compliment to Mrs. Charles Sheldon Jr., president of the club, who will become Nell's mother-in-law after next Saturday, the date chosen for the wedding. The club meets every two weeks and is composed of a congenial group of matrons who gather for advance study of literature and classics.

Acting as hostesses at today's affair will be the club members who, in addition to Mrs. Sheldon, are Mesdames J. L. Wright Jr., Francis Evans, program chairman; John Boyd, Ross Garner, J. A. Fore Jr., Bonita Crowe, J. R. Kindig, Martha R. Noble, Judson Garner, Ed Irwin, vice president; Willis Letts, L. K. Starr, John W. Turner, parliamentary; Walter Mason, secretary; George Ripley Jr., George Phillips and Ralph deloach, treasurer.

Last evening, Nell shared honors with her fiancé at the buffet supper given by Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Greene, Dr. and Mrs. Sheldon and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cannon assisted in entertaining.

To Install Mascot.

North Atlanta Chapter No. 36, O. E. S., meets this evening at 7:30 o'clock in John Rosier Masonic hall, 1002 1-2 Hemphill avenue.

Mrs. Pauline Dillon, member of appeals and grievance committee of General Grand Chapter, assisted by Mrs. Geneva Foddrick, associate grand matron of Georgia, will install Miss Beverly Maddox as mascot for 1939. Mrs. L. Vert Mitchell will be soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Kate Massey, grand organist of Grand Chapter of Georgia.

The past mascots, Miss Marcia Vandegriff, past mascot of Grand Chapter; William Butler, Miss La Verne Hulseley and Miss Betty Jean McLaughlin will be honor guests.

IF YOU FEEL SUNK

Read this and cheer up

Are you so blue that life is no longer worth living? Do you feel low, mean, depressed—just absolutely SUNK? Then here's a good news for you in case you need a good general system tonic—just take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and tone up your system, so that it can more easily throw off the "blues" and give more energy and enjoyment.

MILLIONS of women have depended upon this Compound and have passed the word along to friends and neighbors, and to their doctors. Why not take Pinkham's Compound and go "smiling thru"?

Better Make Time for That Bit of Youthifying Exercise Each Day

My Day: Houses In Natchez Are Really Homes

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NATCHEZ, Miss.—We arrived in Vicksburg, Miss., at 7:20 this morning. Knowing we would have a long drive, we breakfasted before leaving the train. The paved road has been put through, with the help of WPA labor, so recently that everybody is still talking about it. One lady told us she had objected very much to having a paved road go through because she wanted people to linger in Natchez. However, because they have considerably less travel by boat than they once had, and since no train passes through, I think it rather fortunate for the tourists they can now come here over a good and very pretty road.

At 9:30 we reached the hotel, had an hour to settle down comfortably, and then met the press and later the advisory committee of the state NYA. Later I had a short talk with the assistant director of WPA women's and professional projects in this state. They are particularly anxious to start a restoration project, because the old houses are badly in need of repair.

As we drove down this morning, I noticed soil erosion work and terracing going on. I was told by some of the gentlemen who came to see me that it made a great difference in the condition of the land. Perhaps, after all, it will some day turn out that this period when we are obliged to spend great sums of public money, has meant an investment which will, in the future, bring returns to the public as a whole.

After an early lunch, we left the hotel at 1, and managed to visit seven of the lovely old homes. The most beautiful gardens, it seems to me, were those of "Monteigne," but among so much beauty it is hard to pick out any one which is particularly outstanding.

Never tell me that women are not able in business. Natchez is being built up financially by a woman's idea, carried out by women. They have obtained good publicity, and they have one great advantage, the houses displayed are really homes. They are lived in today and frequently the mistress of the house receives you herself. Some of the dresses worn are genuinely old and the furniture is good of its date. In some cases, it does not happen to be our most beautiful period, but the pieces are good examples of their day, and the china and silver is extremely interesting.

I saw a set of china painted by Audubon which, even though it has been divided in the family, still consists of 200 pieces. It was amusing to find some china with gold and pink decoration which is identical with a few pieces of china that came to me from my Grandmother Roosevelt, and which is almost the counterpart of a set I have long admired belonging to my cousin, Mrs. Henry Parish. Some of the paintings were the same as those which hung in my Grandfather Hall's house. He bought them in Italy when he traveled abroad, at about the same time that cotton was king in Natchez, and people here imported their furniture and their art.

Greedy Employer Belittles Girl and the Work She Did

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

Perhaps my request is unusual but it covers an important point which I wish you would emphasize. Recently a lovely young girl was requested to do some stenographic work that required great care and accuracy, long hours of hard work. She did it to the complete satisfaction of her employer and then he set out to quiz her as to what she thought she was worth, all the while belittling her and the work. In the end he offered her exactly one-fifth of what she was accustomed to get, and she left his office in tears, dumb with amazement and indignation. What can be said for a man who belittles a grueling job, also the girl who does it, in order to get it done for less than it's worth? Some men make a habit of this. INTERESTED PARTY.

Answer: Aren't we all agreed on the subject of the man who takes advantage of his position to crush the spirit of the people he employs with the purpose of getting costly labor at a cheap price? It's greed, you know, one of the most contemptible traits that flesh is heir to. Presumably these spirit crushers have been with us a long time; the Jewish Prophet Amos said his respects to them in words that sting and burn.

In these days when jobs are scarce as hens' teeth and nobody lures turn on down for fear another won't turn up, the greedy employers are having their inning. But if it's any consolation, remember, every dog has his day—and his pay day.

On the other side of the question: a shy, sensitive girl who has too much delicacy to discuss money matters, can't expect to take these dainty feminine feelings into the cold, hard business world and market them at a profit. Business is business and the time for us to do our bargaining is before, not after, work is begun.

"The laborer is worthy of his hire," says a proverb, but she'd better find out if the employer agrees and to what extent.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am in love with a boy who is going to college and I haven't a full high school education. We have a swell time together and are congenial in many ways, but my friends all tell me that a college boy wants a wife who is his equal in education. Is this true or does love make up the difference?

VICTIM OF FATE.

Answer: Here's a brutal answer, my dear: If you haven't the get-up-and-go to read and study and catch up with your college boy, love won't make up the difference between you, for he's ambitious and there's no indication that you are. His learning to read and write and his advantages will throw him with people you aren't prepared to meet and any man who can't be proud of his wife before his friends usually parks her where she can't embarrass him.

A question that still troubles some young men about to be married is who foots the bills. The groom pays the minister, buys the bride's ring and flowers and, if he wishes, he flowers for the attendants—but this is not necessary—and usually some little gift for ushers and other attendants. The rest of the outlay is paid by the bride's family.

Pretty Spring Pajamas—Barbara Bell

It's time to be making yourself a new supply of comfortable, good-looking sleeping or lounging pajamas for spring and summer time. Here's a way to do it with pattern No. 1710-B that you'll like very much. It is a particularly smart style for slim young things who look piquant in very wide trousers, a bloused waistline and a ruffly little peplum around the hips.

This is a particularly cute pajama top, with a two-button closing at the back, puffed-out sleeves, and a swirl of braid at the square neckline.

The trousers are cut to fit perfectly and they tailor beautifully. The pattern is perforated for the short-slacks length, as well as the long, Chambray, gingham, batiste, silk crepe and satin are nice for this design.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1710-B is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 12 (30) requires 4 yards of 35-inch fabric for long length; 3 1/2 yards for short; 2 yards braid or bias fold for neck and sleeves.

Send for Barbara Bell's spring pattern book! Make your own smart new frocks for street, daytime and afternoon, with these simple, carefully planned designs! It's chic, it's easy, it's economical, to sew your own. Each pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart to guide beginners.

Price of pattern, 15c. Price of pattern book, 15c. Do not send stamps.

Screen stars have their own ideas as to how to go about keeping their looks, but their programs are simple. They always allot time for that bit of exercise so necessary to slimmness and maintaining a youthful appearance, though their diaries and family Bibles may tell true tales concerning their age. A slim waist is assured by the exercise illustrated.

Relaxation, Exercise, Sensible Diet—Are Beauty Secrets for Staying Young

By Ida Jean Kain.

According to our almanac, which is by no means reticent about telling a woman's age, many of our favorite actresses are nudging 40 and some of them are well past the nudging stage. Yet, we would rather go to see them than many of the so-called glamour girls just making their debuts.

If there is anything about the art of staying younger longer these actresses have not mastered, it can't be very important. Discounting a certain mature charm which only enhances their fascination, they look very little older than they did 10, 15 and even 20 years ago. They are so attractive "in person" for camera magic of make-up to be the explanation.

In spite of her recent Hollywood troubles, Kay Francis completely coincides with the average woman's conception of a smart actress, a style setter and a beauty. Miss Francis is now 40—just the popular age—but she looks younger and lovelier now than she did 10 years ago.

Miss Francis' beauty secrets can be summed up in one word: relaxation. She likes sun and air, a moderate amount of activity and plenty of rest. She has a boat and sailing it is her favorite recreation, for it furnishes all these things.

Our tattling almanac states that Alice Brady and Ina Claire were both born in 1898—which seems like an exaggeration. Some of the most hilariously witty roles are portrayed by Miss Brady and the irresistible sirens enacted by Miss Claire are the real thing. Both are slender and Miss Claire is cited every now and then for having the most beautiful carriage of any actress. They follow special exercises to keep their measurements trim and watch the calories to stay at normal weight.

But what we can't get over is the fact that Billie Burke is 54! Discounting her share of mature charm, Miss Burke does not look more than five years older than she did 20 years ago, when she was the queen of the footlights on Broadway. As a perennial beauty she is something to marvel at—and so is her beauty program. It is simple but rigorous. She exercises for 15 minutes every morning and, in addition, walks two and often five miles daily. Since she never neglects this routine, it serves to keep her measurements perfect: bust, 37 inches; hips, 37 inches; waist, 28 1/2 inches.

Being individualists, these beauties have their own ideas as to how to go about keeping their looks, but their programs are simple. You could follow a similar one easily—and you would, too, if your career depended upon your youthful appearance. Somehow or other you would make time for the little bit of daily exercise that is essential to slimmness and for the relaxation that wards off wrinkles. Why not do it, anyway? You will be happier for looking your best—always!

Treatments For Focal Infection

By Dr. William Brady.

Apart from theory, experience and observation in actual practice have proved the principle of focal infection is sound. A great many people suffer with mild or occasional joint inflammation or other vague "rheumatic" trouble which is due to a septic focus or depot of infection in some part of the body, most frequently, perhaps, in a tonsil.

Formerly such sufferers, having tried out many medicines, diets and physio-therapeutic treatments, were confronted with the question of submitting to a major operation—surgical tonsilectomy. That is, unless they were very poor risks indeed.

A lady aged 75 years with some such trouble did a rather childish thing—she travelled from her own town, where there were plenty of good doctors, to the best advertised clinic far away. When she had gone through the mill there she big shot in charge of tonsil finishing assured her that all the trouble was no doubt due to her bad tonsils, but on account of her age, her weak heart and her general poor condition nothing could be done for her. She could only go home and try to grin and bear her burdens until—that wouldn't be long, the quack implied. This was before the boys in the clinic got wind of what the not so "well known" doctors who practice under their own names were accomplishing with diathermy.

The lady got her dander up, scouted around, found a doctor an easy bus-ride from her home who extirpates tonsils with diathermy, and today she enjoys greatly improved health.

Another woman writes: "Doctor—of— (village a few miles from the city where the woman resides) removed my diseased tonsil in four treatments by diathermy. After each treatment I came home and ate a hearty dinner. The next day my throat felt rather sore, but I never missed a meal. Our doctor here was skeptical about removing tonsils by this method when he learned I was receiving the treatment, but he admits now that all of the tonsil is gone and the throat on that side is as clean as can be."

Another instance where the doctors in the city are backward, or perhaps too busy trying to maintain an imposing front, while the doctors in the village are wide awake and keeping up with the progress of the profession.

The best practice has proved that it is good sense to apply the therapeutic test in cases of focal infection when the septic focus is apparently in the tonsil. That is, try the effect of diathermy—electro-coagulation—treatments. Often the first, second or third diather-

Sonja Henie Finds Herself Without Publicity Escort

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 8.—Sonja Henie's imminent return to Hollywood has raised quite a problem for her studio. There is no available young man on the lot who can act as her publicity escort. Her studio press romance, Tyrone Power, has been assigned to Anna-bella. Ditto P. R. Richard Greene, who is now genuinely enamored of Wendy Barrie. Of course, there is still Cesar Romero, but he seems to be busy with Ann Sheridan. In this extremity, the studio may call on Randolph Scott, who is under contract to Paramount, which means dividing the publicity. However, Randy is currently at Sonja's studio making "Sunnah of the Mounties," with Shirley Temple, so that makes him 50 per cent eligible. Incidentally, don't get the impression that I am against these studio-devised romances. It's a swell way for boy to meet girl—and to keep both before the public eye.

Clark Gable and Carole Lombard have confirmed the chatter that they will have as quiet a wedding as possible under the circumstances—i. e., with the whole country alert to their plans. They want Gail Patrick and her husband, Bob Cobb, as witnesses, but this will be a last-second decision, depending on last-second circumstances.

Joan Crawford's much-touted singing and ice skating in "The Ice Follies" turns out to be no skating at all and three bars of music which she sings with a chorus. Was it for this that Joan spent two weeks recording five songs, and several hours a day for three weeks learning the noble art of ice-skating? However, Joan still gets her $5,000 a week for the next three years, no matter how much of her histrionic efforts lies cut and bleeding on the cutting room floor.

Budgeting Now for Your Wedding Day?

Budget now for your wedding day? Yes, if you want to wake up on your wedding morning care-free, gloriously happy—no item forgotten.

What expenses fall to you or your family? To the groom? Easy to arrange if you remember that your family are hosts on the wedding day. They pay for expenses connected with the church—floral decorations, awnings, fees to organist and sexton.

They arrange and pay for invitations, the wedding reception too—decorations, music, wedding cake and other refreshments. And of course you or your family buys your wedding dress and accessories—and your trousseau.

What does the groom pay for? The marriage license, the fee to the clergyman, the wedding ring. He buys boutonnières for the men of the bridal party, usually presents the bride with her bouquet. He gives corsages to his mother and the mother of the bride. And my treatment produces a general reaction followed by extraordinary relief of the systemic trouble, as might be expected if the septic focus has been pasteurized, sterilized or drained. In not a few cases that is all the treatment required. (Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution.)

Decorating Five-Room Flat

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"We've moved so much," writes L. K., "that it seems that we've done nothing but dispose of things. Now for the present we're settled in a five-room flat and I'd appreciate advice about decorating it."

"We have a mantel with a false fireplace where I've put a table in the open space. I want to buy a picture to go over this ensemble. In the dining room we have a large painting of the southwest desert in brilliant blues and yellows. The entire space needs rearranging. The living room rug is beige with blues and reds in tree of life design. The dining room rug is plain in effect in duobonnet coloring. Part of the furniture is slip covered in plain light blue cotton and the rest is in a soft two-tone beige linen. The curtains in the living room are old—in shiny rayon material of deep blue, while the dining room curtains are beige voile with brown ball fringe. The walls are plain light beige."

"The questions are: what color should we use for accent and to pull the room together? What picture for over the mantel? How would you arrange the furniture?"

THE ANSWER.

Could you replace the rayon curtains in the living room with plain beige curtains like those in the dining room? This would help tranquilize the room. Perhaps a sunny picture of yellow flowers would be the pleasantest thing over the mantel. Lemon yellows would be the best color for accent. I think—use it in cushions, lamp bases, flowers and perhaps in one new slip cover.

I'd prefer a fire screen in the false fireplace opening instead of the table, then possibly a bench in front of it. Place sofa in front of the window with easy chairs and coffee table drawn near. The piano I'd have with the desk and chair near. The radio and dining ensemble could go in the dining wing of the room.

Over-Zealous Rebids, Common Error of Contract Players

By Harold Sharpsteen.

One of the outstanding errors made by contract players of limited experience is their over-enthusiasm in raising partner's forced responses to their one-round forcing takeout doubles.

Until partner confirms the possession of some genuine strength by making a free bid, the takeout doubler should assume partner's first response was based on an absolute minimum hand.

ADVOCATES SINGLE RAISE.

Having doubled an adverse opening suit bid for a takeout and receiving a forced response from partner of one spade after third hand has passed, doubler should exercise due caution in raising the spade bid. Doubler should raise to two spades, not three or four spades, holding:

S-K J 6 4 D-Q 7 3 C-K 4 2 H-7 4 2

The reason for this is, partner may have bid the one-spade takeout holding:

S-Q 8 5 3 D-8 6 5 H-7 4 2 C-J 6 3

To give partner a double raise, takeout doubler's hand should be something like:

S-A K 6 4 D-A Q 10 2 H-K J 5 C-K 4

Should take out doubler raise partner's forced response immediately to four spades, he should be prepared to play the hands at that contract under the assumption that partner may not hold more than four spades to a Jack or possibly the ten.

PROMISES STRENGTH.

With added trump length, however, requirements may be shaded somewhat when it appears certain that if the contract can not be made it will not be badly defeated. From the other side of the table, doubler's partner should realize the strength doubler shows by a double raise to his forced takeout and go on to game with anything like a genuine suit bid.

Having responded one spade to a takeout double of one club, responder is justified in going on to four spades, when doubler gives a double raise, if he holds as much as S-K 9 7 6 4 and little or no outside help.

RAISE CAUTIOUSLY.

A rebid of two notrump by takeout dealer, following partner's forced suit takeout, likewise indicates a strong holding. Doubler virtually guarantees ability to take eight tricks alone at notrump or go to a suit if doubled by opponents for penalties.

Raise partner's takeouts cau-

Woman's Quiz

Q. What causes home-made sauerkraut to discolor, soften and spoil?

A. Among the reasons are: A wrong proportion of salt to cabbage, poor mixing of the salt and cabbage, poor packing, poor skimming, dirty containers, poorly-paraffined wood, the rising of the cabbage above the surface of the brine and the storage of kraut in too warm a place.

Q. When combining acid and milk, how can curdling be prevented?

A. Add the acid to the milk instead of the milk to the acid.

Q. My hair has rather suddenly become dry and dull. I have been having it washed every week and have it curled by means of a finger wave and dried under an electric dryer. My scalp is dry and scaly and has a fine dandruff that itches. I cannot afford to have treatments and want to know how best to treat it at home.

A. Brush your hair, part it in little squares and apply warm olive oil. Let it dwell with the finger tips and leave it overnight. Wring a bath towel out of hot water and wrap it around the head, keeping the head moist and warm for 10 or 15 minutes. Shampoo with a mild, pure soap. Rinse thoroughly and brush well with a towel. When nearly dry massage the scalp with the finger tips until the hair is completely dry. Arrange the hair without curling for a week or two if possible. Massage the scalp with the finger tips each morning and brush well with clean brushes at night. If the scalp becomes very dry within the week, apply a little olive oil to the scalp and do not shampoo more than twice a month until the hair becomes glossy and the scalp is normal. If possible, try to get out in the sunlight without a hat.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postal stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor, Washington Service Bureau, 1011 15th Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Three of the most interesting answers will be printed here daily. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Pretty Spring Pajamas—Barbara Bell

Here's the dress you want for those balmy days when you can go outdoors without a coat. Lillian Mae has just designed: Pattern 4073, making it so simple that even beginners will find it a pleasure to use. There's seductive charm in every soft, flowing line! There's originality, too (so that you'll know you won't meet your "double" in the next block!) See what an unusual neckline is formed by front fullness joining the yokes. These yokes are part of the bodice back. Indeed, as the Sewing Instructor shows, you have only six main pattern parts, counting both short or long sleeves. Trim with lace—and contrast belt, buttons and ribbon! Pattern 4073 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 3 1/4 yards 39-inch fabric and 2 1/4 yards lace edging; belt, 1-4 yard contrast. Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Officers Club Meets. Mrs. Neva Stephenson was hostess to the Officers Club of Maple Grove No. 86, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, Monday evening at her home in East Point.

After a business session, musical selections were rendered by Miss Myrtle Stephenson and a buffet supper was served.

Brown-Coleman. ROME, Ga., March 8.—Miss Edie Fay Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Brown, of Columbus, Ala., and Edgar Dee Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Coleman, of Guinn, Ala., were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rachel Zachry, the bridegroom's cousins, here Saturday.

Dr. E. R. Leyburn, Presbyterian minister, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman on their return from a wedding trip will reside on the bluff road. For the past several years Mr. Coleman has been engaged in business in Trion and Rome.

Youthful Atlantans Observe Birthdays. Little Miss Margaret Haverly will celebrate her fifth birthday at a children's party on Friday afternoon, to be given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Haverly, on Pine Valley road. The affair will be in the nature of a costume party and will assemble members of the young hostess' kindergarten class and a few additional friends.

A number of children's games, including an Easter egg hunt, have been planned as entertainment for the young guests, after which a movie will be shown. Mrs. Haverly and Mrs. Sterling Elder, grandmother of the small hostess, will assist in entertaining.

On Saturday afternoon Little Miss May Haverly, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haverly, will be co-hostess with Little Miss Corinne Carpenter at a skating rink. The affair will celebrate the birthdays of both hostesses and invited are 75 members of the school set. Their mothers, Mrs. Haverly and Mrs. Guy Carpenter, will chaperon the party.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gleaver Patton, of Ben Hill, announce the birth of a son March 5 at Crawford W. Long hospital, whom they have named William George. Mrs. Patton is the former Miss Ethel Catherine Hancock.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt C. Burt announce the birth of a daughter on March 6 at the Georgia Baptist hospital who has been named Sally Louise. Mrs. Burt is the former Miss Billie Smith, of Newman, the baby is the granddaughter of George W. Smith, of Newman, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burt, of East Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murray Frizzelle announce the birth of a daughter on March 2 at Emory University hospital, whom they have named Myrallene. Mrs. Frizzelle was the former Miss Sybil Cowart.

Miss Jewell Kelley is convalescing at her home on West Peachtree street after a tonsil operation.

Duncan—Roberson. LAGRANGE, Ga., March 8.—The marriage of Miss Mary Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Duncan, and Melvin Lee Roberson, of LaGrange, was solemnized Saturday by Rev. Elmer Noble at his home on DeGroat street.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her bridesmaid, a young model of rust crepe with matching accessories, and her shoulder spray was fashioned of sweethearts roses.

Mrs. Roberson, older daughter of her parents, is a sister of Miss Jewell Duncan, Buford and Hugh Duncan, all of LaGrange. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Roberson, is employed at the Hillside plant of Callaway Mills here, where he and his bride will reside.

Tucker Garden Club. The Tucker Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. K. C. Cofer with Mrs. C. E. Tollison as co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. W. Guy Simmons, opened the meeting with a poem written by one of the members. Mrs. Simmons presented Mrs. J. J. Wallace of the Jenny Lind Club, who spoke on "Planning the Garden."

After a social half hour the club adjourned to meet in April with Mrs. H. E. Gatlin.

Miss Bucy Speaks. Miss Wilma Bucy, field worker, Home Mission Board, will speak to the Y. W. A. Business Women's Club at Young Brothers' church at 7:15 o'clock this evening.

Mount Vernon Club. Mt. Vernon Garden Club met recently with Mrs. R. J. Walters on Carroll avenue, in Hills Park. After a business meeting contests and games were enjoyed. Prizes were won by Mrs. E. G. Goldston and Mrs. R. J. Duncan.

Lily Damita Goes Garbo in Atlanta

The ranks of cinemactresses who use the "Ay tank Ay won't talk" system for getting publicity were joined yesterday by Lily Damita, actress-wife of Errol Flynn, who stopped here briefly. She arrived at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and was joined by Flynn at noon. Both left on a west-bound plane at 12:50 o'clock.

Reporters and photographers who were informed yesterday morning by the air line that "Lily Damita is in town; you can get a good story from her" were led on a wild-goose chase by Miss Damita. Staying at a local hotel until her husband should arrive from New York, Miss Damita evaded all interview.

All were greeted with demure screams (loud enough to gain attention, however) by Miss Damita, who promptly hid in hotel beauty parlors and elevators.

Finally "cornered" as she boarded the plane for Houston, she declared in a very heavy accent that she had nothing to say and she "really didn't want any publicity."

As the plane pulled out Flynn was seen to grin broadly.

ried here tonight at a ceremony attended by relatives and close friends.

Atlanta Women Agree With 11 Other Cities

The Query conducted among women here a few weeks ago has extended to 12 cities; now includes the answers of over 1200 women.

In each city, 100 users were asked "Were you helped by CARDUI?" Of the 100 Atlanta users, 98 declared CARDUI helped them; 99 out of 100 Jacksonville users said they were benefited. Answering "Yes" to the question were other users as follows: Dallas, 88; Charlotte, N. C., 94; Okla. City, 92; Columbia, S. C., 93; Little Rock, 88.

Averaging replies of all 12 cities shows 98 out of 100 users helped. As a good stimulator of appetite and a real aid to digestion and assimilation, CARDUI assists women to build up strength and energy. Thus they may avoid headaches, nervousness, depression, cramp-like intermittent pains, and many upsetting symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. When symptoms indicate the need, larger doses of CARDUI often prove helpful in soothing pain and nervousness "at the time."

Over fifty years of popularity with millions of bottles used, speaks your confidence in CARDUI. Try this all vegetable product—(adv.)

SEIZE MORE BOTTLES OF BROMO-SELTZER

Drug Firm Calls Action 'Arbitrary and Unfair Exercise of Power.'

The United States district attorney's office filed formal petitions of accusation yesterday against an additional 3,500 bottles of Bromo-Seltzer stored in Atlanta warehouses, on charges the material was "misbranded," and "dangerous to health when used in the dosage, or with the frequency prescribed" on the containers.

Approximately 2,200 bottles of the medicine were seized by federal agents Monday on a similar accusation. The Emerson Drug Company of Baltimore, manufacturer of the product, was given until April 1 to file an answer. If an answer is filed, a trial date will be fixed by Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

The district attorney's office explained that the accusations were made under the federal food, drug and cosmetics act of 1938, and that no criminal charges were involved. Officials of the Atlanta station of the food and drug administration said the charges concerned the quantity of the drugs acetanilid and sodium bromide in the product, and the failure of the label to warn of its dangers when used under certain conditions.

By authority of the same act, Judge Underwood signed orders yesterday condemning nine unlabeled boxes of Dr. Wansborough's metallic nipple shields, and 7,870 pounds of frozen perch fillets. Both articles had been libeled and seized as dangerous to public health. No answer was filed by their shippers.

The shields, according to the food and drug office, are "dangerous to nursing infants, because of the danger of lead poisoning." The fish, shipped here by a Gloucester, Mass., company, were imperfectly frozen and decomposed, it was claimed.

SEIZURE CALLED 'ARBITRARY, UNFAIR' BY DRUG FIRM

BALTIMORE, March 8.—(P)—Officials of the Emerson Drug Company, of Baltimore, manufacturers of Bromo-Seltzer, tonight called the government's seizure of a quantity of the product in Atlanta, yesterday, "arbitrary exercise of power by an administrative authority not intended to be granted by congress when it passed the new food and drug act."

A statement issued at the company's offices said: "The product involved has been used by millions of people over a period of 50 years. Its formula has not been changed in the slightest degree in more than a quarter of a century. During this time, the manufacturer has had many clinics conducted and has obtained scores of opinions from nationally recognized medical and technical experts which support its claim that its product is not dangerous in any degree."

"The action taken by the food and drug administration came without any warning to the manufacturer, who had not been communicated with in the matter in any way."

"For a product to be permitted to be sold for half a century with no indication by the federal authorities that it is in any degree dangerous, and then, suddenly, without warning, subjected to the arbitrary procedure which the food and drug department has invoked in this instance, seems most unfair."

"The manufacturer believes this to be an arbitrary exercise of power by an administrative authority not intended to be granted by the congress when it passed the new food and drug act."

PRIZE FRENCH FILM

Will Show at EMORY
Playing at the Emory theater today and tomorrow is the prize-winning French picture, with English sub-titles, "Mayerling," co-starring Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux. "Mayerling" was voted the best foreign film of the year.

Intensely emotional and romantic, this film enactment of the mysterious tragedy of Mayerling finds Charles Boyer as Crown Prince Rudolph, of Austria, and Miss Darrieux, who plays Marie Vetsera, gives a winsome and moving performance.

Headache, Bad Breath
May Be Tattle-Tales

Those swinging red warnings at railroad crossings are known as "tattle-tales." Nature has them, too. One form is headaches, biliousness, coated tongue and bad breath, which often indicate constipation. Disregard of these warnings may not lead to a smash-up, but it often brings on a host of constipation's discomforts: sour stomach, belching, no appetite; loss of energy; mental dullness.

Don't neglect your important bowels. There's no use when a spic, all vegetable product will usually clear them of souring waste and do

Scarlett Prepares To 'Scram' From the Atlanta Fire

Long before she was forced to make an evening dress from the dining room draperies at Tara, Scarlett O'Hara wore handsome gowns such as the one which Vivien Leigh is shown wearing as the film heroine during the opening day's shooting of Gone With the Wind. At the right, Clark (Rhett Butler) Gable, is standing by the wagon which Scarlett used in her flight from burning Atlanta to Jonesboro. Melanie Wilkes, played by Olivia de Havilland, was in the wagon on that dramatic ride.

REFUGEES PROVIDE PROBLEM IN FRANCE

What Nation Is To Do With 400,000 Spaniards Requires Solution.

By PERTINAX.
(Copyright, 1939, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

PARIS, March 8.—(By Wire)—How is the French government to get rid of the 400,000 refugees from Republican Spain (including some 50,000-odd soldiers), which are proving such a costly and troublesome burden, and, in an international crisis, might seriously hamper and delay the mobilization of the 16th and 17th army corps, whose headquarters are at Montpellier and Toulouse, respectively?

There is no more urgent problem to be solved in the near future. The undertaking bristles with difficulties.

A careful census has been completed by now of all the Spanish refugees. Forty thousand of them cannot be sent back to Spain—10,000 because they are common criminals, and 30,000 on account of their past political activities, which would expose them to the reprisals of the Nationalist regime, as they could not hope to escape the penal law recently enforced.

The 10,000 men of the former category will necessarily have to be treated as convicts, and therefore to be deported to suitable places overseas. The other 30,000 are quite capable of becoming good citizens of a foreign country. Negotiations already have been opened with various South American states, for instance Colombia and Argentina, and William C. Bullitt, the American ambassador to France, seems to have been approached.

As to the balance of 360,000 men and women, no valid objection whatever can be raised to their early repatriation to Spain. However, the Burgos authorities have closed the Franco-Spanish frontier and nobody is allowed to go across.

It devolves upon Foreign Minister Bonnet and Marshal Petain, the new ambassador to Burgos, to negotiate an agreement with Franco's ministers and the Spanish ambassador expected in Paris shortly. Meanwhile, there is not the faintest indication that the Burgos authorities will show any willingness to lift the mortgage which weighs upon France and is fraught with so many embarrassments to her, both internal and external.

WALLACE PRESENTS COTTON PROPOSALS

White House Conference Held To Discuss Problem of Surplus.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—Secretary Wallace today laid before President Roosevelt proposals designed to alleviate the cotton situation—a situation which finds the bulk of current supplies tied up under government loans and exports decreasing sharply.

Out of the conference, which was attended by Secretaries Morgenthau and Hopkins and Francis B. Sayre, of the State Department, administration recommendations to congress are expected to develop.

While Wallace declined to disclose proposals he advanced, they are known to have as their objectives prevention of an increase in present loan stocks of 11,200,000 bales; release of some of this cotton into market channels so that it might be sold abroad at prices competitive with foreign growths; and improvement of income of southern farmers.

43 Per Cent Loss
Concerned over a 43 per cent loss in exports from last year's subnormal level, Wallace took the problem to the White House when congressional committees failed to agree on legislation after wrestling with the problem since early in the session.

Foreign buyers have been turning elsewhere for cotton largely because prices of the American staple have been above world levels and because of difficulties in obtaining ample supplies of some grades. The loan program has tended to peg American prices above foreign prices as well as "freeze" supplies.

Sources close to Wallace said he suggested at the White House conference that one of the following plans might be followed:

1. Establishment of a two-price system under which foreign buyers could acquire cotton at world price levels, while domestic processors would be required to pay a bounty of 6 cents a pound. This bounty, which would be collected by means of a certificate plan, would be paid into a pool and then distributed among farmers cooperating with the government's cotton control program. This plan is designed to give such farmers 3 cents a pound on their production shares.

2. Continuation of the present loan program and addition of provisions for subsidizing exports. A similar program is being employed to place 100,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat into foreign markets this season.

(Agriculture Department officials have estimated an export subsidy program would cost upwards of $100,000,000 annually.)

3. Payment of special subsidies to farmers keeping cotton of future crops from being placed under loan. It has been estimated this plan would require between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 annually. Wallace has suggested that processing taxes could be levied to finance it.

4. Release of upwards of 3,000,000 bales of loan cotton to farmers agreeing to make reductions in planting operations in addition to those already suggested by the Agriculture Department. This cotton would be sold in regular market channels. Advocates believe this would tend to lower prices to competitive world levels and thereby encourage exports.

George Sargent Discovers Ideal Angle for Golfer's Swing

John Rucker Undergoes Sinus Operation; Declared Out Indefinitely

One of the most significant discoveries in the history of golf has been made by George Sargent, veteran East Lake professional.

Who would think, for instance, that a difference in angles could mean as much as two and one-half pounds more weight in the swinging of a club?

And whoever thought, too, that there is an element of physical injury in swinging a club at the wrong angle consistently? There really is.

After eight years of study, using the medium of the movie camera, and a weighing machine, plus long experience as a player and teacher, George Sargent has worked it out.

A club weighing, say, 14 ounces, has an increased weight of two and one-half pounds when swung at an angle of 22 degrees. Most of the leading players make contact with the ball at such an angle.

BUT, a club weighing 14 ounces has an increased weight of FIVE POUNDS when swung at an angle of 45 degrees, which is the way you and I and Maggie play the game.

In other words, you and I and Maggie are simply asking for it whenever we go out on a course. Figure it up for yourself, John Dub. What are 100 swings multiplied by five? Why, 500. That's 500 pounds. Figure that as against the energy of building up 500 pounds deadweight over 18 holes and you get the general idea.

It's bad enough to be carrying 200 pounds of your natural weight without letting a club build itself up into a stupendous proposition. No wonder you puff and blow, John Dub, as you come wearily to the last hole. You may not realize it, but that 14-ounce club you started out with so gaily and hopefully now drags along as a hopeless proposition of 500. Remember all those times you didn't feel you had the strength to carry it and simply let it drag along behind you?

You'd better change your angles, John Dub. It may not improve your score any, but at least it will save a lot of wear and tear on legs and back.

REVOLUTIONARY DISCOVERY.

George Sargent and a lot of other pros knew Joyce Wethered, the great English golfer, had something. But they didn't know just what.

Movies were taken of Miss Wethered's swing. And George Sargent finally solved it. Miss Wethered, swinging a club at an angle of 22 degrees at contact with the ball, always was well upon her toes when she hit it.

And that was it. Charlie Yates did the same thing. But that's another story. That wasn't discovered until a couple of months after the British amateur.

Charlie looked at the pictures and was shocked when he saw that he was well up on his toes at contact with the ball. He set about trying to change his style. His game went a bit haywire.

Meanwhile, George Sargent had been studying the pictures of Joyce Wethered and Yates. He told Charlie that while it was against all accepted methods, hitting the ball on the toes was the secret of distance and control.

Charlie immediately dropped back into his normal way of playing and the result was astounding. He had 12 CONSECUTIVE rounds under 70!

Charlie will be swinging on his toes in defense of his British amateur title.

Bob Jones used to hit a ball on his toes. And that brings up still another story. It concerns the golden age of legs.

REACH PEAK AT 28.

George Sargent and other leading professionals consider the golden age for legs to be up to 28 years. After that, they don't have the spring to get up as before. One's game must be adjusted. It's a lot like the great pitchers who find their legs are going. They then must rely on cunning and experience rather than the blazing fast ball as of yore.

Getting back to the technical side of it, and George Sargent's amazing discovery, there is the angle of a club at the top of the swing to be considered.

At the top of the swing, a club is 180 degrees out of line. This has to be recovered in the downswing, or before contact with the ball is made.

Well, when a ball is hit at an angle of 22 degrees

EAST LAKE GOLF PRO DEMONSTRATES THE RIGHT --- AND THE WRONG --- WAY TO HIT A BALL

CRACKERS SHOW PLENTY OF PEP

Snappy Infield Drill Held at Savannah; Inset Looks Good.

By ROY WHITE.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 8.—A red-hot infield drill, the first of three days' practice, featured today's Cracker spring grind at Municipal stadium. Two different combinations were worked, with Coach Guy Green hitting the grounders.

It was only a brief drill, and a loud yell was let up when Manager Richards sent the players to their respective positions. The numerous pitchers joined their mates in a continuous chatter very much in evidence on last year's championship team. In fact, some of the players remarked "that 1938 spirit" is with us again.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 8. Emil Mallo, Atlanta's fiery little right fielder, slated to be moved into the left field position this year, checked into the camp early tonight.

He reported immediately to Manager Paul Richards and appeared eager to get into the Thursday morning drill.

With Mallo and Inset arriving today, only Bolling, Bressler, Gotschalk, Durham and Rucker remain on the absent list. At least two of the absentees are expected by nightfall Thursday.

The drill was even more peppier than that of Monday morning when the first session was inaugurated.

Louis Inset, a 17-year-old infielder from Louisville, Ky., and Roger Hornsby's baseball school at Hot Springs, Ark., joined the squad and took part in the first infield drill.

A combination of Al Rubelling, at third; Russ Peters, short; Alf Anderson, second; Manager Paul Richards at first; and Dewey Williams, opened the work.

Manager Richards then took his old position behind the plate, with James Francoline, third; Inset, short; Marshall Mauldin, at second, and Nig Lipscomb at first, for the remainder of the day.

Under Richards' position, Lipscomb yelled "Bring on Jack Bolling; this is not my post!" though the second baseman and candidate for a catcher's berth, did fairly well.

Larry Smith, son of the former Cracker, "Doc" Smith, alternates with Manager Richards with the rookie combination, and looked good. He has a fine throwing arm and soon was bubbling over with that "1938 Cracker spirit."

Fundamentals were again stressed, the pitchers fielding bunts more than an hour and alternating at throwing to third and second. Much improvement has been made in pivoting and cutting the ball loose to the basemen in the three days' work.

LONG BATTING DRILL. Eager to prove the 1939 Crackers will hit equally as well as those of last year, another long hitting drill was staged and again it was Russ Peters, Francoline and Lester Burge, the big outfielder, who chased the "Shaggers" far back out of their natural positions.

A strong northeast wind prevented any balls from being knocked into the left field stands, though Burge hit a couple into the stands in right.

Alf Anderson also was hitting "em far and wide today, much to the pleasure of Cracker officials.

It was another rainless practice session though low hanging clouds prevented the sun from shining except at brief intervals.

President Earl Mann, on the sidelines with Bobby Lamotte, president, and Chick Autry, manager of the Savannah Indians, was all smiles as those yells went up from that first infield drill. He

George Sargent's new golf discovery, made after eight years of painstaking study, concerns angles and method of hitting the ball. A weighing machine of his own invention proves the added weight a club takes on at an extreme angle of swinging. For instance, at a swinging angle of 45 degrees a club weighs five pounds, whereas at the desirable 22-degree angle, it weighs only two and one-half pounds. Hitting a ball on the toes, always considered a fault, is proved by Sargent to be a decided asset. It has been a major factor in the success of Joyce Wethered and Charlie Yates.

SNEAD, GULDAHL FOUR-BALL KINGS

Ralph's Miraculous 30 Beats Horton Smith, Runyan, 7-6.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 8. (P)—National Open Champion Ralph Guldahl uncorked a miraculous five-under-par 30 over a nine-hole stretch today as he and Samuel Jackson Snead won the $5,000 international four-ball golf tournament.

Held even through the morning round, Guldahl and Snead suddenly overwhelmed Horton Smith and Paul Runyan with such a par-breaking display as never before was seen in this 18-year-old tournament and triumphed easily, 7 and 6.

The open king and his powerhouse partner blazed a best-ball 28 on that amazing nine holes to win $1,000 each. Smith and Runyan, 1933 winners who finished second on three other occasions, collected $500 each.

Snead and Guldahl, oddly, were never ahead during the morning round. Snead, in fact, had to send a 30-foot putt curling into the cup on the 18th green for an eagle 3 to send his team to lunch with the match even.

"I always play better in the afternoon," Guldahl grinned as he threw his arm around Snead's shoulder.

And how he played better! THE CARDS.

Sargent's Machine Weighs Golf Swing

Eight Years of Study Proves It Pays To Get Up on Toes for Swing.

By JACK TROY.

It pays to be on your toes in any line of endeavor, but it's literally true in golf now.

Joyce Wethered and Charlie Yates definitely have capitalized on it, and there may have been other golfing greats in the past who could trace it to their success.

This all is the result of a great discovery by George Sargent, whose playing experience includes the national open championship of 1909 and whose teaching experience has embraced three countries—England, Canada and the United States.

After eight years of study, Sargent has discovered that the angle of the swing and being on one's toes is most important to golfing success. He really discovered it through pictures of Joyce Wethered, great English woman golfer.

He found that she came up on her toes in an extreme fashion at the moment of contact with the ball. In so doing she was able to recover all the degrees a club is out of line at the top of the swing. And in hitting the ball on her toes, the added leverage meant greater distance and more control.

YATES DOES IT. Charlie Yates does the same thing. He hits a ball on his toes. It's something that long has been considered a fault in golf, but really turns out to be a decided asset.

Through pictures, George Sargent discovered it was the right thing to do. And through a weighing machine of his own invention, he has accurately estimated what the different angles mean in the actual weight of a club in a golfer's hand.

Hitting a ball at an angle of 22 degrees from the stance means that a 14-ounce club has a weight of two and one-half pounds. The 22-degree angle is ideal. Erect stance is a natural result.

45-DEGREE ANGLE. Most duffers and beginners, however, hit a ball at an angle of 45 degrees from the stance, which causes the club to weigh five pounds, reduces leverage and makes it much easier for a club head to turn over.

Hitting a ball on the toes is a

BLOOD PRESSURE OF RUCKER HIGH

Young Star May Not Open Season; Mauldin Slated for Center Field

By JACK TROY.

John Rucker, fleet young Cracker outfielder who was operated on here yesterday for a sinus infection, is suffering from high blood pressure and it may be necessary for him to miss the entire period of spring training, attending doctors announced last night.

The blood pressure condition must be rectified before he can train, and doctors said it is problematical whether or not he can join the Atlanta club at Savannah.

This unexpected development is a real jolt to Cracker plans, as Manager Paul Richards intended to start Rucker in center field.

It is expected now that Marshall Mauldin, who has been in camp since the opening last Monday, will return to his old position in center field. Mauldin led the Crackers in runs scored and was second in runs batted in last season.

Rucker is under observation at the Ponce de Leon infirmary and it is highly possible he won't be able to play at all before the first month of the season is well under way.

DAVEY O'BRIEN TO TEACH PREPS

DALLAS, Texas, March 8.—(P) Davey O'Brien, the football wizard who has refused dozens of offers to coach at large schools, finally accepted one today.

He'll be headmaster over the spring training activities of Texas Country Day School here. O'Brien picked a school with an enrollment of only 65, and a football squad of 16 youngsters.

Dorothy Kirby Routs Miley, 5-3; Battles Patty Berg Today

DOT TURNS BACK FOE WHO LICKED HER IN NATIONAL

Mrs. Vare, Helen Dettweiler Other Semi-Finalists at Belleair.

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 8.—(AP) Freckled Patty Berg gained the semi-finals of the annual women's golf tournament here today without swinging a club.

Laddie Irwin, of Montclair, N. J., twice beaten in recent weeks by the national champion, defaulted to Patty today.

The Minneapolis lass will meet Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, tomorrow while the veteran Glenna Collet Vare, of Philadelphia, engages Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C. Miss Kirby today outclassed Marion Miley, 5 and 3, avenging a defeat handed her by Marion in the National.

Mrs. Vare advanced with an easy 6-and-5 decision over Betty Myers, of Clearwater, Fla., and Miss Dettweiler turned back Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., 4 and 3.

Miss Berg recently, was extended to beat Miss Kirby, 3 and 1, in the 36-hole Miami Biltmore finals.

WAIT A MINUTE, BOYS — JOHNNY HILL MIGHT NOT BE BACK

With the slight prospect that Third Baseman Johnny Hill might be returned to the Crackers by the Boston Bees, Alf Anderson, left, and Al Rubeling are staging a hot fight over the second-base job. You can see above they are acting like brothers about it. However, it may all be in vain as Hill has an excellent chance to stick with the Bees as a pinch hitter — if he doesn't make the regular grade. Therefore, Rubeling will probably play third and Anderson second.

Dot Seeking First Victory From Patty

Atlantan To Play at Ussesa Island Before Heading Home.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.
BELLEAIR COUNTRY CLUB, March 8.—Well, Marion and I have played six times in all now, and I have won three of the six times. So I guess that makes us even.

I really got myself into a fine spot, for tomorrow I play Patty again. Needless to say I have a bad average where she is concerned—three defeats for three feeble efforts on my part. But this time I hope to win.

I can at least hope, so I am doing that—if that does any good.

Pat had a default today over Laddie Irwin who was in bed with a terrible cold and sore throat. However, Pat went out and practiced up this afternoon. I hope she didn't get too good.

Getting back to this morning I played rather erratic and was out in 40 and had par in on the last three holes for a 35. If I could just learn to put two good nines together I would be all right. I had better do that against Pat.

In the other match, Helen Dettweiler meets Mrs. Vare. Helen really played the best golf of the tournament today, for she went out in 36 against Jean Bauer and was three over on the back side at the end of the match. Helen has played Glenna once before and it was in this tournament. Helen won the round on the eighteenth by one up. So I guess that Glenna will be out for Helen this time.

The finals of the tournament will be Friday. After they are over I am going over to Ussesa island to play in a match with Patty and Laddie. Then I imagine we will head toward home.

Claude Bond Leaves Wednesday for Ocala

Claude Bond, Tech trainer and Southern league umpire, will leave Atlanta next Wednesday for Ocala, Fla., training camp of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Bond will work spring exhibitions with the Brewers. He was one of the most valuable umpires in the Southern league last season, and despite the fact he has been umpiring for only a few years professionally, Claude was drafted by the Association at the close of last season.

He will return to Tech at the close of baseball season to resume his duties as Jacket trainer.

With seven pairs of women's teams and six doubles from the men's group filed Wednesday, the total number of entries for the seventh annual Atlanta Constitution "St. Patrick's Day" doubles bowling tournament mounted to 67 pairs of men and women, with the tournament scheduled to be held on the local alleys on March 18.

With the meet nine days off, interest is gaining momentum and more than half the total number that rolled last year in this exciting doubles have already signed.

The Ladies' Commercial League contributed seven pairs of bowlers with Martina Cleveland and Johnnie Carter, Pat Cox and Tommie Carper, Mary Jo Fillingame and Estelle Warrington, (a former winner), Ida Dallas and Margaret England, Mary Pearson and Mrs. John S. Blick and Evangeline McLennan and Jane Blick filling their entry blanks.

From the men's leagues Grady Graves and Wright, W. Coleman and J. Townsend, Bob Knox and Guy Watson, Paul Poetter and Earl Goodman, H. C. Cain and R. T. Hedden and I. W. Sargent and Tom Cerniglia signed to bowl.

The Constitution doubles affords all bowlers a splendid chance to participate in fast tournament competition without the added cost of an entry fee. You compete on an even basis with every bowler in the tournament as the handicap bridges the gap between the averages.

7 North Carolinians Bid for Cracker Berths

Williams, Stroupe, Durham, Burge, Smith, Lipscomb, Robinson Are Tarheel Products.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 8.—North Carolina, with five rookies and two class men, has the best representation on the 1939 Atlanta Crackers training squad.

And a couple of the Tarheel rookies are beginning to be the talk of the camp with their sterling performances.

Dewey Williams, Winslow Stroupe, Gastonia; Bobby Durham, Greensboro; Lester Burge, Ashboro; Larry Smith, Angier; Nig Lipscomb, Spindale and Onnie Robinson, Mars Hill, are the Tarheel representatives.

Stroupe, the sensational 16-year-old pitcher and baby of the squad, and Burge, powerful southpaw hitting outfielder, are the favorite topics of conversation.

Six of the seven North Carolina candidates are battersmen, three catchers and three pitchers, with Burge, an outfielder making the seventh player. Not a single infielder from the Tarheel state is listed.

SOMETHING ON BALL.

In his eagerness to prove his ability, Stroupe has been warned to take it easy and not try to knock the catcher down. He has an easy motion and truly has "something" on the ball with every pitch, though he insists he is not bearing down.

Friz Oetting remarked that Stroupe's pitches are "heavy," hard to hit and may cause a lot of Southern league batters some trouble.

Manager Richards likewise was particularly impressed with the youngster and has found himself swinging time and again at "something" which isn't there, at least not in line with his bat.

Burge, with powerful forearms, big broad shoulders and a fine stance at the plate, is beginning to look like the "find" of the spring training.

His wallpops are well labeled and it is no pleasure chasing the ball after it has gone beyond the usual distance in the outfield.

PEPPERBOXES.

Nig Lipscomb and Dewey Williams continue to be the pepperboxes of the squad, letting off timely yells that rebound against the park walls. They truly have the old spirit.

One of the question marks of the pitching staff will be settled, should Robinson come through and at the rate he is going now, there is no question about it. He looks improved over his last year performances at Ponce de Leon park in the latter stages of the season.

Smith, a capable catcher, looks to be a bit weak at the plate and bucking such competition as Manager Richards and Dewey Williams, the best catching staff in the Southern league, he most likely will be farmed out with a string attached. He is a son of "Doc" Smith, a former Cracker catcher, now managing New Bern, N. C.

Bobby Durham has proven his worth to the Crackers.

So North Carolina is certain to share in the success or failure of the 1939 Atlanta Crackers.

appears well pleased with the work thus far.

Lamotte and Autry are looking over the talent in the hopes of getting that which is cut loose for their Sally league team.

Insert looks to be a promising infielder, handles himself very well, but appears too green for Southern league company at present.

The pitchers were all given a turn in the box, but due to the strong wind with just a bit of chill in it, none of them were allowed to put anything on the ball.

Trainer Dick Niehaus is more than pleased with the conditioning of the squad. He has not worked over time and except for a bit of soreness which is easily working its way out, no casualties have been reported and not a minute has been missed from the drills by any player.

from your person, and one comes up on one's toes, as it were, it is much more difficult to turn the club head over. The lesser angles not only reduce the swinging weight of the club but also rectify a common fault.

Of course, now, a person with an excessive waistline doesn't need to know all this, because it probably wouldn't be possible to hit a ball placed that close. One's anatomical construction will govern whether or not George Sargent's idea can be brought into play. If Ralph McGill has read this far, he can turn to the comics. Because he already has passed the golden age, anyway.

So far as George Sargent has been able to determine, through study of pictures, only Joyce Wethered and Charlie Yates have come up on their toes to a really marked degree. Miss Wethered did it to an even greater extent than does Yates.

Sargent is using the new method in teaching and is getting very fine results. Now that it is all worked out, it's so-o-o simple. Funny no one ever discovered it before.

But, after all, he was at it eight years before he finally worked it out. The electric light and the telephone seem rather simple now, too.

CAMERA WAS ALL-IMPORTANT.

George Sargent frankly admitted that the discovery never could have been made without the camera.

"We still would know that Miss Wethered had something. But without the camera, there would be no way to figure it out."

"Charlie Yates might still be trying to work out mythical defects in his swing."

The discovery is certain to improve the play of golfers, especially among the youngsters coming up. And if there is a hall of fame for professionals who make an outstanding contribution, it doesn't seem a bad idea to dust off a place now for George Sargent, father of five boys and five girls, four times a grandfather, and national open champion in 1909.

STATE QUINTETS TO OPEN ATHENS TOURNAMENT TODAY

Record Entry of 25 Teams Include Two Defending Champions.

By EDWARD M. MILLSAP.
ATHENS, Ga., March 8.—With two out of three defending champions again representing their district, the fourteenth annual state high school basketball tournament will get under way tomorrow afternoon when the first game is called at 5 p. m.

Dacula, the Class C champions, will meet Stilson, their first foe of the 1939 title go, in the second encounter on the program tomorrow, but the D class winner of last year, Cottdale, will not be called upon to take the floor until Saturday morning. In the first game they will meet Spence, the tough little team who, as runners-up, gave the Cottdale boys such a hard battle in the finals last year.

The Cottdale team is unique in that it is the only quintet in the state that is coached by a woman. Although Miss Annie Bryde Mullis is their chief mentor and guiding hand, the Cottdons show none of the feminine characteristics as is shown by their fine record in past tournaments.

Griffin, champions of Class B last year, did not return, leaving the field open for other winners in the higher brackets.

DOMINIC, NOW 21, SEEN AS CERTAIN TO GO UP AFTER THIS YEAR.

HANFORD, Cal., March 8.—(UP)—Take it from Charley Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals and a man who knows baseball, Dominic DiMaggio will be the third of his clan to break into the major leagues.

Dominic just turned 21, is brother of Slugging Joe DiMaggio, of the New York Yankees, and Vince DiMaggio, late of the Boston Bees. In Graham's opinion, Dominic is sure to "go up" this year.

Graham said the Seals will allow the major league clubs to bid for the services of DiMaggio. Although he could not say what club will get the young ball player, rumor has it that the Yankees are on the inside track.

"If Dominic had got in his regular spring training last year, and had been in tip top shape when the season opened, we could have sold him last year," Graham said as he watched his 60-odd regulars and rookies work out under the warm March sun. "I entertain no doubt at all that we will sell him this year."

Dominic is conditioning himself at the Seals spring training camp here for his third season at the centerfield post in Pacific Coast league competition.

A product of San Francisco's North Beach, Dominic is just as good a player as Joe except in hitting, according to Graham.

"But Dominic is no slouch as a hitter, he added. "He hasn't got the power Joe has at bat, but he hits the ball plenty hard."

ROSS, RED DEVIL GRAPPLE FRIDAY

Whenever they get too tough, the promoters always send for Blackjack Ross, the terrible Greek.

That explains why Ross is being brought here to meet the Red Devil Friday night at Warren arena. The masked warrior has had ten matches here and despite the stiffest kind of opposition, has remained unbeaten. His hardest test was with Jack McAdams, South-eastern light-heavyweight champion, who got a draw after being beaten on a foul in a previous bout.

Promoters believe Ross might be the man to stop the hooded terror. The Greek is powerful and stops at nothing to win. If the Red Devil loses, he will unmask. Fans have been doing a lot of guessing as to his identity, but so far, few of them have agreed.

Bob Anderson and John Mauldin, a pair of aggressive, battling huskies, will meet in the semifinal.

The 30-minute curtain raiser will bring together Paddy Nolan and Benny Cohen, Jewish grapplers.

Last week's show drew one of the season's biggest crowds and another big turnout is assured with Blackjack Ross returning here.

One's anatomical construction will govern whether or not George Sargent's idea can be brought into play. If Ralph McGill has read this far, he can turn to the comics. Because he already has passed the golden age, anyway.

So far as George Sargent has been able to determine, through study of pictures, only Joyce Wethered and Charlie Yates have come up on their toes to a really marked degree. Miss Wethered did it to an even greater extent than does Yates.

Sargent is using the new method in teaching and is getting very fine results. Now that it is all worked out, it's so-o-o simple. Funny no one ever discovered it before.

But, after all, he was at it eight years before he finally worked it out. The electric light and the telephone seem rather simple now, too.

Tech To Have Four Fine Offensive Ends

Ison, Sprayberry, Webb, Bartlett Star in Scrimmage; Shaw Looks Good at Tailback.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Whatever else may happen, Tech will have four of the finest offensive ends in the Big Thirteen next season—if performances in the present spring practice are any indications.

Bill Alexander's probable first two sets of flankmen will embrace four pass-snagging, husky men, all weighing close to 200 pounds and standing over six feet tall.

Bob Ison and Paul Sprayberry are the holdovers, George Webb is up from the freshmen and Joe Bartlett was a back last season. In yesterday's scrimmage these four big fellows demonstrated their pass-catching and running ability in a little show all of their own.

Bartlett and Ison ripped off yard after yard on Coach Alex's deceptive end around play. Sprayberry and Webb made sparkling catches of passes hurled by Johnny Bosch and Cowboy Shaw.

Ison got around end on one run for about 50 yards and Charley Griffin said:

"Gosh, our ends run better than the halfbacks."

"Only trouble is," Coach Alex said, "They are weak on defense. Our ends are good on offense, but bad on defense while our guards are fair on defense but rotten on offense."

Buck Shaw, the drop-kicking Texas cowboy, is bringing smiles to the faces of coaches. He suddenly has picked up considerable speed, and is now playing at tailback. Last year he was the best passer on the squad, and with his newly-found ability to run with the ball in addition to his drop-kicking, he is expected to make a valuable man at tailback.

Other stars of the scrimmage which lasted until it was too dark to see the ball, were Billy Gibson, Buck Murphy and Johnny Bosch. Gibson was running better than ever before, Murphy continued his deadly blocking and the little Bosch is just about all one could ask for in a sophomore tailback.

However, despite the pleasing performances of these boys, Coach Alex was pessimistic over his team.

"We are too green," he said. "While you see the good things, we notice the bad. And we don't like to look back before we get there. Our guards are giving us the most trouble at present. Cavette has a broken arm and Sanders is sick. So we are still short of men at the positions."

The first team lined up against the Red Devils yesterday with Webb and Ison at ends, Muerdt and Lackeray tackles, Aderholt and Dyke, guards; Bosch, tailback; Murphy, blocking back; Gibson, wingback, and Ector, fullback.

CLYDE SMOLLS ESCAPE
Serious Auto Injuries

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 8.—Clyde Smoll, Cracker southpaw, obtained from Beaumont of the Texas league, narrowly escaped serious injuries here last night when his car turned over twice after being struck by another car coming out of a side street.

Mrs. Smoll was taken to a hospital with minor bruises and cuts, but was permitted to leave after first aid. Clyde, only 24 years old, required no medical attention. He participated in today's three-hour spring practice drills.

Smoll's car was wrecked.

In 1896. Twenty pointers have been crowned champions and have won the title a majority of recent years.

TRUE CHAMPION.

Before today's running, many of the riders had predicted the judges would ask several more of the 28 dogs entered to show their wares in a second race. However, it was apparent soon after this morning's race was set down that the arbiters were satisfied Pride was running truly a championship race.

The trials were held over the rolling and wooded acres of the Hobart Ames plantation near here. It was Ames, a wealthy Boston sportsman who inaugurated the meet 43 years ago.

Pride replaces Air Pilot Sam, a pointer who was not entered in this year's meet as the national champion.

from your person, and one comes up on one's toes, as it were, it is much more difficult to turn the club head over. The lesser angles not only reduce the swinging weight of the club but also rectify a common fault.

Of course, now, a person with an excessive waistline doesn't need to know all this, because it probably wouldn't be possible to hit a ball placed that close. One's anatomical construction will govern whether or not George Sargent's idea can be brought into play. If Ralph McGill has read this far, he can turn to the comics. Because he already has passed the golden age, anyway.

So far as George Sargent has been able to determine, through study of pictures, only Joyce Wethered and Charlie Yates have come up on their toes to a really marked degree. Miss Wethered did it to an even greater extent than does Yates.

Sargent is using the new method in teaching and is getting very fine results. Now that it is all worked out, it's so-o-o simple. Funny no one ever discovered it before.

But, after all, he was at it eight years before he finally worked it out. The electric light and the telephone seem rather simple now, too.

CAMERA WAS ALL-IMPORTANT.

George Sargent frankly admitted that the discovery never could have been made without the camera.

"We still would know that Miss Wethered had something. But without the camera, there would be no way to figure it out."

"Charlie Yates might still be trying to work out mythical defects in his swing."

The discovery is certain to improve the play of golfers, especially among the youngsters

COMMITTEE BLOCKS STREET REPAIR PLAN

Hartsfield Wins Delay Against $30,000 Appropriation for Work.

Proposals to improve Atlanta's streets were blocked again yesterday when the finance committee of city council refused to approve a $30,000 appropriation for an immediate repair program.

Councilman John A. White and Mayor Hartsfield engaged in several minutes of heated debate over the proposed improvements. White urged the money be appropriated, declaring the streets were in a "terrible" condition. Mayor Hartsfield asked that the repair program be held up until June 1, pending outcome of negotiations now under way for construction of the East North Avenue and West North Avenue underpasses.

White and Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen voted to approve the $30,000 appropriation. Mayor Hartsfield and Councilmen J. Allen Couch and Cecil Hester voted against it.

Pair Plan Fight.

After the meeting White and Bolen said they would oppose all future expenditure of funds for salary increases or creation of new jobs until something was done about the streets. White said the public works committee would bring the fight to council at its next meeting.

"I am not going to vote for something new when what we've got is torn up," White asserted. "With our streets in their present condition I simply cannot understand why we keep postponing action."

The repair program was recommended by Clark Donaldson, chief of the construction department.

"All to Pieces."

"We have neglected our streets until they are all to pieces," Donaldson told the committee. "Our present setup is not adequate to cope with the situation. If the money is appropriated, we purpose to repair every street that is worn out and full of holes."

Donaldson said the $30,000 would be increased by WPA funds, which would make approximately $100,000 available for street improvements.

Mayor Hartsfield explained to the committee that plans are now under discussion whereby the city would receive federal aid in constructing two underpasses, and said the public improvements fund should remain intact until some decision is reached on these two projects.

AGNES SCOTT PLANS $150,000 BUILDING

$65,000 Gift Released to College for Fine Arts Structure.

Plans for a $150,000 fine arts building and auditorium at Agnes Scott College are being completed and construction will be started soon, students were told yesterday by Dr. James Francis Cooke, president of the Presser Foundation of Philadelphia, which is providing $65,000 toward the building fund.

Dr. Cooke, here on an unexpected visit, addressed students yesterday.

An Agnes Scott campaign raised $52,202, and assurance that the remaining $32,798 would be available, made possible the Presser gift, Dr. Cooke said.

The funds of the foundation were assigned several years ago, upon condition that the college raise the additional $85,000.

Tentative plans for the building include a chapel, to seat 1,100, and to be named in honor of F. M. Gaines, first president of Agnes Scott. In addition to the gift announced yesterday, the foundation gives two scholarships in music to Agnes Scott students each year.

MAN GETS YEAR ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Auto Thief Also Sentenced by U. S. Court.

Samuel Boone Vineyard, of Gilmer county, was sentenced to a year and a day in the federal penitentiary yesterday by Judge G. Marvin Underwood, after evidence showed he had violated conditions of a two-year probationary sentence given him a year and a half ago for selling liquor.

Vineyard was picked up last week in Chattanooga after a warrant for his arrest had been issued by the United States marshal's office here.

Judge Underwood also sentenced Thomas Jennings to a year and a day after he pleaded guilty to violating the national auto theft act, and imposed the same sentence on William Horton, negro, who entered a plea of guilty to forging United States Treasury checks.

MARVIN L. HARDEMAN TO BE BURIED TODAY

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

Maxey L. Hardeeman, 61, widely known Georgia businessman, died at his home here last night. He had been in failing health several years.

He was a son of Colonel R. U. Hardeeman, state treasurer during Governor Atkinson's administration. A former Atlanta, he was born at Oxford, and was educated at Emory College.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock (E. S. T.) tomorrow morning at the residence. Burial will be at 2 o'clock (E. S. T.) in Oxford cemetery.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Eugenia Thelms; sons, Maxey, a grandson, Edward Thelms; Mrs. Jessie Thompson, of Swainsboro, and Mrs. Nina Houser, of Decatur.

North Shivers As Record Cold Sweeps Down

By The Associated Press.

Sweeping in from the north, a cold blast tightened winter's grip around the New England and other northeastern states yesterday, sending temperatures below the zero mark in some sections.

March cold records of long standing were broken in northern central New York. At Newton Falls, the mercury fell overnight to 18 degrees below zero. Canton had two below and Watertown zero.

At Syracuse, a recording of seven above equaled a record for the date set in 1913.

Sub-zero points in New England included Greenville, Maine, where the thermometer hit 14 below. Northfield, Vt., and Eastport, Maine, 4 below, and Burlington, Vt., 2 below.

The thermometer went to 27 below zero atop Mount Washington in New Hampshire's White Mountains, as winds of hurricane velocity—95 miles an hour—swept the tallest peak in the northeastern section of the country.

LAND USE SURVEY OF FULTON SOUGHT

$24,117 Map Would Give Data on All Unincorporated Areas.

The Fulton planning commission yesterday voted unanimously to seek a $24,117 WPA land use survey of unincorporated areas of the county.

Robert L. MacDougall, commission chairman, said the survey, if approved by federal authorities, will include all Fulton county except incorporated areas in Atlanta, College Park, East Point and Hapeville, and will assist us in making an intelligent land allocation in planning the future.

"We want to do the job right, and we need such a map to give us a picture of the trends and also the present uses of properties," he added. "We are confident the survey will be of inestimable value to the commission and will contribute much to an intelligent planning program."

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 10

Every eye was turned on the hideous face indicated by Janette. The dancing light of the campfire gave it a weird and repulsive appearance. Then the face broke through the screen of bushes, and the figure of a huge giant stood revealed—powerful and menacing.

The saffron-colored creature advanced slowly, cautiously. Small reddish eyes, fixed upon Janette, glittered evilly beneath the low, flattened cranium. The great jaw was thrust forward belligerently. In one hand was a big cudgel, in the other a copper-bladed spear.

"It looks like the devil himself," Perry O'Rourke whispered in awe. At the sound of his voice the monster paused, surveying his opponents. Tarzan stepped forward in silent challenge. "Shoot, Perry," Major Burton said softly, "that fellow looks dangerous to me."

"No, do not shoot. Leave the matter to Tarzan," D'Arnot advised. The next moment his voice was raised in a shout. "Tarzan! Look out! That spear—" Before he could complete his warning, the creature bounded forward and hurled the spear straight at Tarzan!
